

TO THE STUDENTS:

We, the staff, sincerely hope that all of the students of the Lodi Union High School are proud of this yearbook. Whether you think it is dandy, rotten, or mediocre, remember how much it cost. We took the money that we had and did our best.

Money———did you get that word? Of course many things united make the Annual possible, but the financial phase is by far the most important. Without the funds contributed by Lodi's most generous business men, a book of this size and calibre would be impossible.

So, each time that you look thru this old Tokay, remember who was behind it and likewise stick behind them.

THE EDITOR.

TO THE BUSINESS MEN:

I wish to extend my thanks to the local business men for the courtesies shown me and for the advertisements which they so graciously gave to the Tokay.

Everything for the Well Dressed Man

EVERY man who cares about his appearance is invited to visit our store.

The progressive man of today dresses smartly, without foppishness or ostentation; he watches style that he may intelligently accept that which is new and good, and avoid that which is doubtful or freakish.

From the approved styles he selects clothes and furnishings that best become his build and features.

Therefore, to all men, and young men and particularly to those who hesitate to "look about" without expecting to buy, we extend this cordial invitation to drop in any time and let us show you the new styles in everything men wear.

The logo for John J. Fink is written in a highly decorative, cursive script. The letters are intertwined and have a textured, stippled appearance. The name is enclosed within a rectangular border that has a decorative, slightly irregular shape.
