The Aeronautics Club

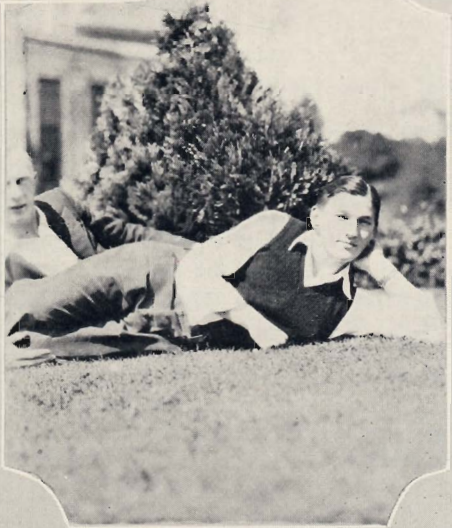

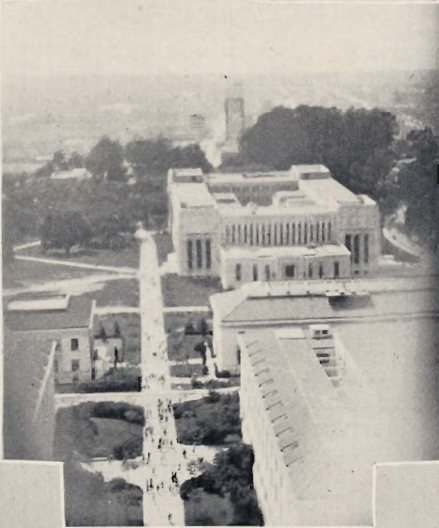

THE AERONAUTICS CLUB with its membership of thirty-three has just finished a very successful year. The outstanding event of the year was the completion of Thorpe's "Text on Aviation," which was used as a text book. The officers were Malcolm Graham, president; Lester Coil, vice-president; William Crete, secretary-treasurer.

One of the features of the Aeronautics Club was the adoption of pins consisting of a pair of wings with a small plaque in the center which bore the name of the club.

The first part of the year was given over to the framing of the constitution. However, much time was devoted to speeches, the most outstanding of which was given by a representative of the Boeing Aircraft Corporation.

Trips to airports were planned but were abandoned because of conflicting dates. Mr. P. H. D. Winsor, the sponsor, has the gratitude and respect of every member of the club for his work and application in putting over his program.

The members, all very sincere in their interests in the club, showed their feelings by studying hard and learning as much as possible during the time they had, which proved too short. Because of the fact that one meeting a month has proved insufficient, the sponsor and officers are trying to arrange for two meetings a month next year.

Ye Olde Literary Guild

YE OLDE LITERARY GUILDE was organized on September 27, 1929, by the senior English class for the purpose of gaining more knowledge of literature. This Guild now consists of Chapters I and II, which meet every Friday during class periods for a program presented by various members of the Guild. Once a year the Guild gives a play before the school assembly. This year the play was "Grandma Pulls the String," with Martha Jacobsen, Woodrow Wilson, Leah Lewis, Virginia Curry, Elizabeth LeFeber, and Dora Lerza as the cast, and Miss Elizabeth McDole as director.

The officers of the Ye Olde Literary Guild are a president, vice president, secretary-treasurer, and two critics. Elections are held every fourth meeting. Those who held office this year were:

Band

THE BAND, during the past year, has been a source of pride to Lodi High. It was present at all football games and always made a good showing. Between the halves of the Stockton game the band formed an "L" in front of the Lodi rooting section, and an "S" in front of the Stockton section.

The band also participated in the Armistice Day, the American Legion Picnic, Field Day, and Memorial Day programs.

The big event of the year was the concert given by the band, the chorus, and the orchestra on May 8.

Orchestra

THE FALL term of 1930 saw the orchestra with their conductor standing at the gate of "More Development" waiting for entrance. They soon started on the path of progress.

They made their first public appearance on the night of the Junior play, February 6.

They also rendered selections for the Founders' Day program, for Class Night, and for Commencement.

Several members had the privilege of playing with the Stockton Symphony Orchestra when that orchestra presented a concert in Lodi on March 20.

B. N. O. Club

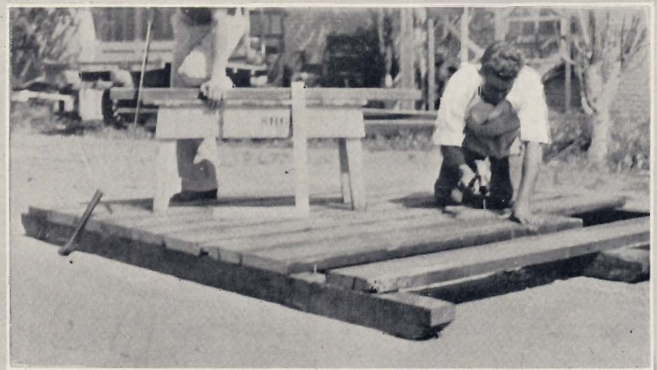

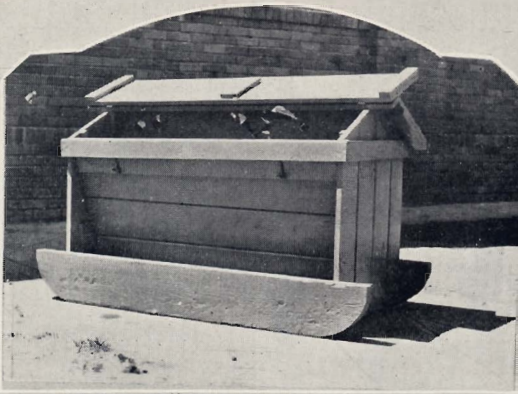

THE CLASSES in band and orchestra compose the membership of the B. N. O. Club, which, besides holding several social functions, sponsored two musical events by outside talent.

The club, on October 31, gave a Hallowe'en frolic in the auditorium to initiate the new members who although they came out of the initiation solemn and rather badly frightened, admit they had a rollicking time. February 27, the club assembled in the New Shanghai Café, for a real Chinese dinner with all the trimmings.

Under the auspices of the club, the Royal Russian Chorus, on December 8, presented a program in the auditorium. The Stockton Symphony Orchestra also gave a concert sponsored by the club, on March 20.

The officers for the first semester were: Carl Mettler, president; Gladys Strobel, secretary and treasurer; Berneace Koenig, vice president; and John Matsuhiro, manager.

The second semester officers were: Marjorie Dunton, president; Alice Field, vice-president; Dorothy Harshner, secretary and treasurer; and Frank Cusumano, manager.

Future Farmers of America

California Chapter, Number 1

THE LOCAL chapter of the Future Farmers of America got off to a good start this year.

Lodi won third place and $200 in premiums in Future Farmer activities at the State Fair. The farm mechanic exhibit won sweepstakes and approximately $90. Many awards were also received in livestock, poultry, and still exhibits.

In the first judging contest of the year held at Davis in October, 1930, a picked team from the girls' agriculture class—new this year—placed first in landscape gardening, with Edna McKindley and Ella Strother first and second respectively as individuals. The grape judging team placed first with Bruce DeVinny, Guisepppe Nepote, and Ralph Hawley placing first, second, and third as individuals. The fruit team won second place.

At the Los Angeles Livestock Show, Peter Marshall did exceedingly well with three fat sheep, winning the Grand Champion Fat Wether in the Junior division.

In the annual-University Farm Picnic Day judging contest held at Davis in April, seven teams representing the local chapter won third place in sweepstakes and for the third consecutive year the Governor Young trophy, in competition with eighty-three high schools from all over the state. The livestock team, although placing only eighth in the contest, scored high team in horses and won the H. C. Muddox Trophy. The agronomy team placed second. The dairy products team placed seventh, and the dairy cattle and tree teams placed eleventh. The farm mechanics team placed fourth, with Howard Anderson high man in sheet metal and John Matsubiro second in wood work.

In the state finals at San Luis Obispo on May 8 in competition with the best teams in the entire state, the agronomy team won the state championship. Guisepppe Nepote, Francis Pierce, and Irvine Mettler placed first, second, and third respectively as individuals in the contest. The livestock team placed third and the farm mechanics team placed fourth, with Howard Anderson second high man of the contest. The dairy products, dairy cattle, and tree teams ranked fifth.

California Scholarship Federation

Lodi Chapter, Number 218

ON OCTOBER 29, 1930, the Lodi Chapter, Number 218, of the California Scholarship Federation received its charter and became a regular part of the State Federation. Since that date the nineteen members of this chapter, with Miss Taylor as faculty adviser, have held regular meetings and taken part in social as well as instructive programs. It is the purpose of this Federation to encourage students to gain a high scholastic standing and to reward them for their achievement. This organization also recognizes the value of athletics and other extra-curricular activities and gives due credit for outstanding work in these fields.

The members for the first semester were Florence Cella, Marie Debrick, Robinette Fisher, Ruth Ishida, Edith McKenzie, Roscoe Shaw, and Marcella Thorp. The officers heading this group were Roscoe Shaw, president; Ariel Lipelt, vice-president, and Marcella Thorp, secretary.

The additional members, who qualified for the second semester, were Earl Allwardt, Howard Anderson, Erna Fetzer, Francis Lerza, Margaret Moore, Esther Nies, and Albert Schneider. The officers for the second semester were Katherine Powers, president; Kathryn Graham, vice-president, and Ariel Lipelt, secretary.

The students who qualified for membership during both semesters were Betty Jean Ashley, Elizabeth DeVinny, Lloyd Engle, Kathryn Graham, Johnny Hiramoto, Taichiro Hori, Ariel Lipelt, Katherine Powers, Henry Sato, Leona Schnell, Erna Stabbert, and Margaret Taylor.

Four members this year became Seal Bearers: Ariel Lipelt, Katharine Powers, Margaret Taylor, and Tachiro Hori. This honor may be attained by anyone holding membership in the organization for six out of eight semesters.

Chemistry Club

BESIDES holding regular monthly meetings, the Chemistry Club have taken several instructive trips to plants where they have seen chemical facts put into practice. One interesting plant was that of the National Fiberboard Products in Stockton. Here the chemists saw the steps in the re-manufacture of paper from the cutting up of old newspapers to the finished paper, cardboard, and cartons. Incidentally, the students decided that they would never chew paper again. At the large sugar refining plant in Crocket, California, the students were shown how sugar is refined from raw sugar and made into granulated, powdered, and brown sugar, and cubettes. They also visited the Calaveras Cement plant and the Pardee Dam and power plant.

The club sponsored a moving picture, shown in the auditorium on the American and Hawaiian sugar industry. This picture showed how sugar cane is grown in Hawaii and how it is refined in the sugar plant at Crocket, California.

Another program sponsored by the club consisted of several musical numbers and a "Mickey Mouse Comedy."

The purpose of the Chemistry Club is to further the knowledge of practical chemistry among the members. With this end in view, several talks were given by the students, moving pictures dealing with chemistry were shown, and some experiments and works of magic were demonstrated by Mr. Corell Smith, club adviser.

The officers elected were president, Norman Adams; vice president, Bruce Rowell; and secretary, Ward Smith.

“The Red and White”

FOR THE first time in its history Lodi High School has this year published a student-written, student-edited magazine, “The Red and White.”

Four different types of literature were used: poems, formal and informal essays, stories, and one-act plays. Manuscripts were submitted from the entire student body and the best were selected by the class in journalism under the supervision of Miss Elta Livoni.

Mrs. Burrell's second-year typing class assisted by cutting the stencils and running off on the mimeograph the entire five hundred fifty copies.

Those heading the staff were: Roscoe Shaw, editor; Julia Lytle, assistant editor; Lillian Wall, art editor; Hazel Baron, chairman of the cover committee; Blaine Runnels, circulation manager.

“The Red and White” appeared during the latter part of May in gay red cover. Several of the stories and poems were appropriately illustrated with pen sketches. The entire journal contained over twenty-five pages.

The staff hopes that the 1931 issue of “The Red and White” will prove to be a lusty pioneer followed by many better editions.

IN THEIR business and social activities during the year, the Girls' Association have past all gateways with banners flying.

"Big Sisters" did well in helping the incoming freshmen. A Christmas box spread a little Christmas cheer to a needy family. Books and other useful articles were purchased for the book case in the dean's office. Candy sales and a public performance added to our financial strength. Poms made by the girls were sold at all football games.

A Girls' Association Orchestra, added feature this year, enriched the monthly entertainments which, in themselves, were varied and gave the girls opportunity to perform. The annual tea was more elaborate than formerly and proved to be the largest success of its kind.

All of these accomplishments were made possible through the faithful cooperation of the members under the guidance of the officers and the dean, Miss Signa Holm.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION of the Lodi High School and the Lodi Union High School, numbering over twelve hundred members, has been an active organization for about twenty years and still numbers among its members the graduates of the Class of 1898, Mr. Geo. M. Hench of Tracy and Mr. Hillard Welch of Sacramento, the first two to graduate from the Lodi High School.

Annually, on the Saturday evening following graduation, the members gather to welcome the graduating class and to renew their association with former classmates, but as the years go by class numerals grow less important and we gather as a group with a common interest—pride in the school which has grown to such proportions in recent years, joy in the success of our fellow members, and desire to welcome and extend the helping hand of good-fellowship to those who are stepping out into the community to take their places among us. Thus the annual meeting is more than a reunion, it is a renewal of the urge for educational progress so that we may keep our association a group of people of whom we may be justly proud.

—AMY BOYNTON, President.
