Girls' Association

The activities of the Girls' Association this year have been many and varied. The first meeting in September welcomed all the new girls to Lodi High. The entertainment included a musical skit, followed by a very interesting talk in which Miss Holm gave sketches of her last summer's tour of Europe.

Seniors presented the program of the October meeting; Juniors, the November one. A Christmas play, music presented by the Sophomores, and a visit from Santa all added to the season's cheer displayed at the December meeting. In January the girls were honored in having as their speaker Miss Virtue, superintendent of nurses at the San Joaquin General Hospital, and Miss Hartley of the Public Health Center. The February program was presented by the Freshmen. At the March meeting the time was given entirely to a musical program. The big event of April was the annual tea, with the mothers of the girls and the faculty as guests. The final meeting in May was for the purpose of installing the new officers and presenting athletic awards won by the girls during the year.

The girls presented a ten-cent assembly in March, made pom-poms and sold them at the games during the football season and in April assisted the P. T. A. by presenting two one-act plays at their public program. The "big sisters" appointed to direct the Freshmen proved a great benefit to Freshmen girls.

The accomplishments of the Association have been made possible through the faithful cooperation of the officers and the help of the dean of girls, Miss Signa Marie Holm.

Band

“The Snappy Lodi Band”—So the “Stockton Record” described the band several days after it made its spectacular entrance on the C. O. P. gridiron at the Stockton-Lodi game, November 14.

No other department in the school has given more to school and community than the band.

The band showed its school spirit in playing at all football games, encouraging the team to victory. It not only was present at the games, but gave the town folks some excellent march music each week when it marched to advertise the games. On several occasions it also serenaded the home of the flashy little Japanese half-back, Matsuo Okazaki. When the football season closed, the band continued its work and made frequent appearances in assemblies. During the course of the year, many of the best known overtures and marches, especially Sousa’s, were played.

Besides taking an active part in school functions, the band played for various civic affairs such as the Armistice Day and Memorial Day parades. It, combined with the Stockton band, gave the teachers a program on the first day of Teachers’ Institute.

The band had a daily class in which to rehearse this year, enabling the members to accomplish more than they had in the past. Paul Thommen was drum-major during the year.

The band opened the annual concert of the Music Department on May 6 with the following numbers: March, “Under the Double Eagle,” Wagner; Overture, “The Gypsy Queen,” King; Trombone Solo, “Fancy Free,” Smith — Carl Mettler, soloist; Largo from “The New World Symphony,” Dvorak; “Wedding of the Winds,” Hall.

Orchestra

The orchestra made a number of appearances during the year which were appreciated. It, too, participated in the programs for the Teachers' Institute. On February 20, several members of the orchestra gave a half-hour program over KGDM, advertising the Symphony Concert which was given in the High School Auditorium on February 23. Mr. George Knoles was the announcer. On May 6 the entire orchestra played three selections in the concert given by the Music Department.

The orchestra rehearsed three times a week, Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday during Activity period.

Mr. Sidney Halsey is the efficient director of both the band and orchestra.

B. N. O. Club

The B. N. O. Club was organized in 1930 for the purpose of gaining more knowledge of music.

During the past year the club sponsored two musical events. On February 23, the Stockton Symphony Orchestra presented a concert under the leadership of Manlio Silva and on April 15, the instrumental concert of the band and orchestra students was held. This was for local high school students only.

One of the social functions of the year was a trip to the snow line.

The officers for the first semester were Berneace Koenig, president; Gladys Strobel, vice president; Helen Jackson, secretary and treasurer; Fink Beckman, manager.

The second semester officers were Fink Beckman, president; Norma Bohnet, vice president; Paul Thommen, secretary and treasurer; Warren Lewis, manager.

Aeronautics Club

Woodrow Wilson .....	President
Noel Allen .....	Vice President
Lyle Shattuck .....	Secretary
Mr. P. H. D. Winsor .....	Adviser

The Aeronautics Club, which has an active membership of twenty-five boys, has been represented at two meetings each month in the study of Thorpe's "Text of Aviation" under the able guidance of the faculty adviser, Mr. P. H. D. Winsor.

Several reels of motion pictures have been exhibited showing the operation and scope of the Boeing Aircraft Company's passenger service.

A trip was made to the Oakland Airport where the club members were taken through the shops and class rooms of the Boeing School of Aviation. Interesting demonstrations were conducted by the instructors showing the strength and stability of airfoils under varying conditions. One interesting demonstration was that of the action of the airfoils as demonstrated in the wind tunnel test. The minimum weight with the maximum strength of rib construction was demonstrated with a harness test in which a rib was brought to its breaking point.

The purpose of the Aeronautics Club is to further a practical knowledge of elementary aviation among its members. This aim is accomplished by lectures and oral discussions.

The majority of the meetings have been spent in learning the theory of flight, wing construction, and similar subjects of a semi-technical nature.

Much credit is due to Mr. Winsor for his intense interest in the welfare of the club.

Scholarship Society

LODI CHAPTER, NO. 218

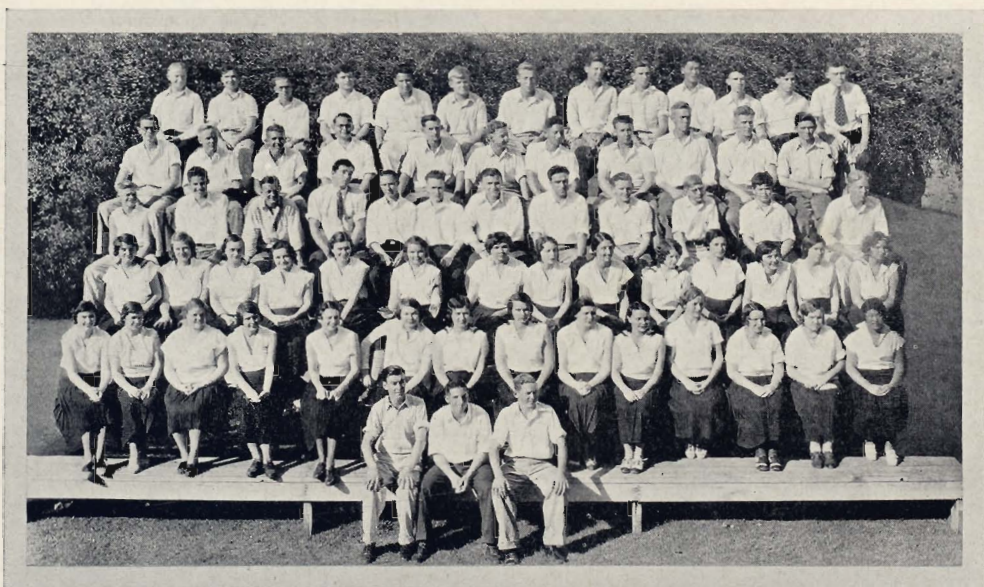

First Semester	Second Semester
Edith McKenzie .....	Edith McKenzie
Kathryn Graham .....	Johnny Hiramoto
Earl Allwardt .....	Patricia Mason
Miss Kathryn Taylor — Adviser

The Scholarship Society of the Lodi Union High School has in a real sense stood for "all-round attainment on the part of its members." Nearly every student in the club has taken part in one or more extra-curricular activities besides having achieved a high scholastic standing.

Regular meetings were held once a month during the Activity period, at which times programs dealing with Book Week, the Olympic Games, Washington, D. C., art, and travel were presented. Once each semester the club gave a party or picnic. At one meeting the C. S. F. entertained all the students in the school who had earned, during the first semester, at least eight of the ten points necessary for membership. This meeting, held in the music room, offered an interesting program, the purpose of which was to stimulate interest in the society, get the students acquainted with the club, and thus give them an incentive to work harder.

The members for the first semester were Patricia Mason, William Meeske, Erna Fetzer, Kathryn Graham, Johnny Hiramoto, Peter Mondavi, Esther Nies, Earl Allwardt, Edith McKenzie, W. L. Davis, Betty Jean Ashley, and Roscoe Shaw. The following qualified for the second semester: Anna Beisel, Grace Baldwin, Margaret Moore, Kiichi Hiramoto, Erna Stabbert, Mary Elizabeth Rathbun, Patricia Mason, Johnny Hiramoto, Leone Huber, and Betty Jean Ashley.

Betty Jean Ashley was the only Seal Bearer this year.

Chemistry Club

Under the leadership of Eddie Seiferling, president, and Mr. Corell Smith, adviser, who were aided by Rowland Walther, vice president, and Roy Holman, secretary-treasurer, the Chemistry Club has had a very successful year.

Interesting meetings were held twice a month during which instructive talks were given on lives of famous chemists and other appropriate topics.

The Chemistry Club visited many plants where materials undergo chemical processes. The members saw how paper is remanufactured at the National Fiberboard Products in Stockton. Trips were also made to the Sugar Mill at Tracy, the Napa Leather Works, the Calaveras Cement Plant, and to the California Hawaiian Sugar Mill at Crockett.

The club presented a musical program in the assembly, considered one of the best assembly entertainments during the year. The musical numbers represented many nations. The American Indians were represented on the program by James Sanguinetti who interpreted the Shoshone Indian dance. Marcella Thorp, Berneace Koenig, Alfred Baerwald, John Holman, and Paul Thommen in musical arrangements depicted respectively Mexico, Hungary, Germany, and Hawaii. Raymond Rinaudo gave two accordion solos. Bruce Rowell and Norman Adams, who impersonated Negroes, carried on an amusing dialogue. The final number was an orchestra, representative of Japan, which featured Matsuo Okazaki and his saxophone, John Matsuhiko, with his oboe, Ruth Tanaka, clarinet, and Betty Takeuchi, piano.

Ag Club

Chapter No. 1 of the Future Farmers of America has completed one of its most successful years. Ninety-eight students were enrolled in Smith-Hughes in 1931-1932, giving Lodi the largest chapter in Northern California. The officers for the year were Charlie Faber, president; Earl Hoff, vice president; Francis Pierce, treasurer, and Marvin Mettler, secretary. The Lodi exhibitors won over $300. in premiums at state and county fairs.

The landscape gardening team consisting of Edna McKindley, Ella Strother, and Eddie Jauch took first place for the second consecutive year at the first judging contest held at Davis. The grape judging team consisting of Ralph Hawley, Gus Nepote, and Francis Pierce took second place. The pomology team, judging apples and pears, placed fourth, while the truck crop team placed fifth. Five Ag boys took animals to the San Francisco Live Stock Show. Each boy received a top price for his animals. On December 3, Leslie Frey, Richard Cooper, and Yoshio Iwamura attended the Los Angeles Live Stock Show. The Bain Field Day was held on April 2 for a practice judging contest. The Lodi boys won enough events to give Lodi first place.

On April 15 the sectional finals were held at Davis. Seven Lodi teams were represented: tree, dairy cattle, dairy products, agronomy, agricultural mechanics, poultry, and livestock. The seven teams took fifth place in the contest while the tree team, consisting of R. Hawley, G. Nepote, and H. Mettler, took second. The agricultural mechanics team, consisting of A. Cooper, W. Peterson, and T. Kaba, also took second. The agronomy team took third, while Eldon Baldwin was high man of the contest. The livestock team placed eleventh in the contest, but first in this section, making them eligible for the state finals held at San Luis Obispo.

Ye Olde Literary Guild

In 1929 the fourth-year English class inaugurated "Ye Olde Literary Guild" for the purpose of gaining a greater knowledge of literature. Throughout the past three years the members have kept to that purpose by giving programs every Friday during the Guild meetings. Besides these programs numerous outside activities were this year undertaken by the Guild. Three basketball games were played, one between the two chapters of the Guild, one with the Chemistry Club, and the other with the B. N. O. Club. The two chapters enjoyed a delightful party April 22 at the home of Zelma Burson. Elections of officers were held on the first Friday of each month. The following held offices:

President: Laura Wall, Ella Strother, Bruce Rowell, Leone Huber, Erna Fetzer, Norman Adams, Fink Beckman, Lillian Wall, Charles Crete, Edith McKenzie, Meta West, James Neal, Harold Stephens, Oliver Tecklenburg, Alice Field.

Secretary: Betty Jean Ashley, Alfred Baerwald, Bernice Ortiz, Norman Adams, Clair Hopkins, Albert Eaton, Ernest Jacobsen, Meta West, Fink Beckman, Doris Miner, Lillian Wall, Annie Rae Cormack, Grace Moore, Evelyn Pope.

International Club

"We, the members of the Lodi Chapter of the International Club, in order to help bring the youth of the world together, to develop in our own group an active interest in foreign problems, and to work toward a better solution of them than war, do formulate this constitution." This, the preamble to the constitution of the Lodi Chapter of the International Club, which held its first regular meeting on November 18, 1931, expresses the purpose of the club. In order to carry out its purposes, the club during the year invited a number of persons who had visited foreign countries to give accounts of their travels; and in order to come into closer touch with the young people of foreign countries, members sent letters to and received letters from club members in different countries. In addition, club members gave reports on foreign customs and problems. Friendliness and understanding among the youth of the world are said to be the best means for avoiding war. The International Club hopes to establish this understanding and friendliness.

The club sponsored a ten-cent assembly on May 11, 1932. The program included a play, "Two Crooks and a Lady," the cast of which was as follows: "Miller," Will Troutner; "Lucille," Evelyn Welty; "Mrs. Simms-Vane," Edith McKenzie; "Miss James," Alice Field; "Police Inspector," Norman Adams; "Garrity," Paul Thommen.

The officers of the club are Paul Thommen, president; Bill Lange, vice president; Leone Huber, secretary; Alice Field, corresponding secretary; Robert Frey, treasurer; Howard Morton, publicity manager; and Mr. Evan Borst, faculty adviser.

Open House

On Monday evening, April 25, Lodi Union High School held open house. This affair is Lodi's annual contribution in the state-wide commemoration of Public Schools Week. Probably 1000 people visited the various departments to see the displays. The outstanding features of the evening were the exhibits of the shop, home economics, art, and Spanish classes.

The classes in agriculture planned two displays, one of specimens of shrubbery inside, and the other of livestock out of doors in front of the shop. This part of the exhibit resembled a county fair, in that pigs, cows, and chickens were on display.

In the shop there were boats and many other student projects. The forges were in operation and embryo auto mechanics were busily engaged repairing automobiles and tractors. Many farm implements made by the boys were exhibited.

The two second-year Spanish classes presented a program in Spanish which consisted of two short skits, "Las Viajeras" and "Don Enrique Va a Los Estados," and a group of Spanish songs sung by Marcella Thorp with guitar accompaniment by Paul Thommen. Red roses and Spanish broom were used for decoration.

The exhibition of the science classes included a menagerie in the biology room, and experiments in the chemistry and physics rooms. Odors, the buzz of electric sparks, and snakes were all in evidence in the Science building. The kitchen of the cafeteria was of interest to many visitors, who also patronized the refreshment counter.

Home economics classes had their notebooks and dresses displayed. On Friday, April 30, they also presented a fashion show in connection with the program provided by the Masonic Lodge to stimulate interest in the public schools. The orchestra also participated in this program. They provided the music for the fashion show and played several excellent numbers at various intervals during the evening.

Swimming, basketball, and a number of other sports went on in the gymnasium. The large crowd of visitors enjoyed watching the swimmers.

Many visitors saw the library for the first time. Here also they saw some books, literary maps, and posters displayed by the English classes. Flowers from the school gardens added to the attractiveness of this display.

The art classes showed many colorful designs in various types of art.

In the typing room many machines were manipulated for the visitors, while each step in the "evolution of a typist" was also portrayed.

A unique exhibit of notebooks and posters in the Latin room indicated the influence of Latin upon modern English. Models of many Roman articles and carved heads and figures in soap showed the ingenuity of those interested in Latin.

Social science classes combined in an exhibit in Room 23.

Mathematics classes also welcomed many visitors.

The exhibit of the Americanization classes showed very conclusively that those enrolled find joy and satisfaction in their work.

Open House Night is now an established custom which is becoming very popular with both the students and the public.
