ROSEVILLE UNION HIGH SCHOOL
ROSEVILLE, CALIFORNIA

HAIL, PIONEERS!

Oh Pioncers of Roseville,
Who founded our city fair,
We greet you with the sun rays
Of morning on our hair.

Your gaze is turned to the westering,
Ours to the rising sun:
Your trail is well-nigh ended,
While ours is just begun.

Yours were the work and sorrow,
The labor and the moil;
Ours is the bright tomorrow,
The fruitage of your toil.

And whether our fate be good or ill
Posterity will tell.
So, Pioneers of Roseville,
Greetings! and farewell!

CLASS OF 1932.

FOREWORD

WE HAVE been traveling four years toward the West, the Land of Light and Knowledge. During our journey we have encountered hardships both mental and physical. We have bridged chasms, forded rivers, and climbed mountains—now we have reached the second resting place. We once were pioneers searching for the Land of Knowledge—now we are camped on its edge.

Our journey was made possible by the pioneers of Roseville, through whose efforts the Land of Knowledge was created. To those pioneers we gratefully and reverently dedicate this annual, which we hope will partly repay them for their sacrifices.

IN MEMORIAM

OSCAR VICTOR NORDEN

His smile will be in our hearts as we walk through the realm of life.

“He is not dead—the boy of our affection,
But gone unto that school
Where he no longer needs our poor protection
And Christ Himself doth rule.”

MR. J. W. HANSON

Principal

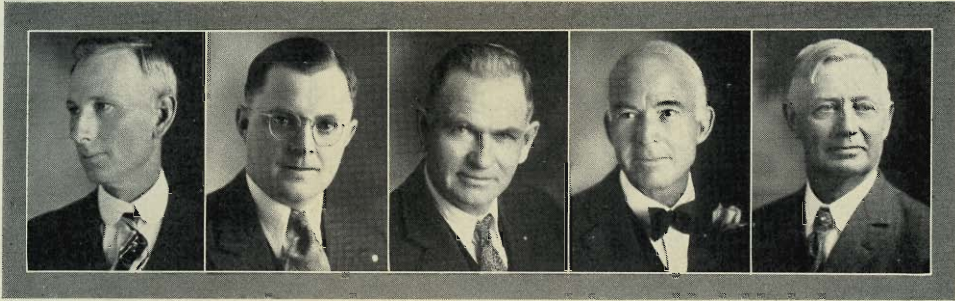

Roseville Union High School

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE TO THE SENIORS

NO BETTER theme for our annual could have been selected than the one which shows the splendid accomplishments of our pioneers in overcoming the many hardships and dangers that confronted them in their quest of a home in a new land.

The indomitable spirit of these men, women, and children might well serve as an inspiration to all of us. You, Seniors, who are now leaving us, will enter upon your college work, or activities of life, with the same courage and determination. You will succeed to the amount of your preparation. Our best wishes go with you.

J. W. HANSON.

W. C. Ferguson, L. E. Gibson, O. H. Ricksecker, E. J. Schellhous, E. C. Bedell

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

THE above girls constituted the 1932 Girls' Glee Club. The girls did not make so many appearances as the boys, but their work in the operetta, "Miss Cherry Blossom" signifies their quality. Miss Read, the director, was fortunate in getting a few new girls who helped her in presenting "Miss Cherry Blossom." The girls, like the boys, are mostly juniors, sophomores, and freshmen, so that next year the Girls' Glee Club should enjoy a fine season.

Taking them as a whole, the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs next year should be the best the High School has ever heard.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

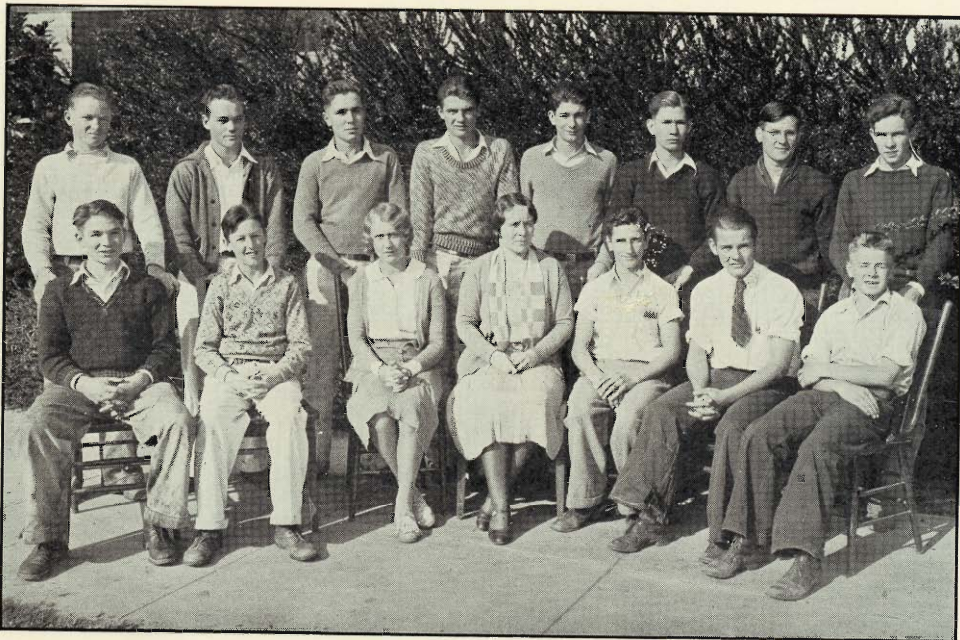

THE boys below constituted the 1932 Boys' Glee Club. Whenever the boys were called upon to sing they were much enjoyed by the people. Miss Read, the director, has done wonders with the boys. She has not increased the number, but she has improved the quality. The outstanding performance shown by the boys was in the operetta, "Miss Cherry Blossom."

Next year Roseville Union High School should have one of the outstanding Glee Clubs in the school's history. Most of the boys are underclassmen, there being only about two seniors. Also, most of these underclassmen have had previous experience and will not be bothered by "stage fright."

PARTHENA

THE Parthena Club was organized the first semester of 1927 under the direction of Mrs. Fleming.

The purpose of this organization is to encourage and promote leadership, friendship, and scholarship among the girls of the High School. The Parthena cooperates with the school in an effort to aid backward students and to make truer, finer girls of us all.

The Parthena also sponsors many social affairs, including two joint meetings with the Circle C boys, and a football banquet during the second quarter. The club has adopted for a yearly event the custom of presenting some token of remembrance to the school, and also of giving a Mother's Day program.

The Parthena Club is on the upward trend through the efforts and able leadership of our new advisor, Miss Donnelly.

WITH Mr. Brady at the helm and each member of the crew doing his part, the Circle C steered its way over a rough sea to the port of another successful year.

A joint dance was held by the Circle C and the Parthena, which proved successful, and it is hoped this will be an annual affair. The clubs also had several joint meetings, and they were enjoyed by those present at each meeting.

New members were brought in the third quarter and a large banquet was held in honor of the boys. Several members of the faculty attended and a good time was had by all, including the new members.

The annual fishing trip will be held this year with the destination undecided at the present time.

EL CIRCULO ESPANOL

ESTE círculo fuè organizado en el año 1930, pero no tuvo mucho acabo en este año. En el segundo año progresò más. Los alumnos ya entendian más el idioma español. Aprendieron canciones españolas, dieron cortas comedias y tuvieron una fiesta al estilo español. Pero en el tercer año de estar organizado hizo mucho mas progreso, debido tal vez, a los consejos y la ayuda de la señorita Rose. En este año el círculo publicó un papel mensual, "El Hablador," que se encontró con mucho favor. Terminará este año con una gran fiesta y exhibición en abril, y la publicación de un librito de chistes, cuentos, comedias y poemas escritos por los miembros del grupo.

CARPENTRY CLASS

WE, the Carpentery Class of 1932, have undertaken a five room bungalow as our project. It is built directly across the street from the west entrance of the main building.

The project was commenced on September 14, 1931. At the end of six weeks the studs were ready to be raised for the outside walls. By March 18, 1932, we had finished shingling, and on April 15, all the plumbing was done. The plastering, wiring, and finishing work was completed in a very short time.

All the mill work, including door frames, was done by the class. The bricklaying was the only work not done by the students.

With the aid of Mr. McGrew, the instructor, we have finished the seventh building for the Roseville Union High School.

CLASS A FOOTBALL

COACH DICK WORDEN'S varsity eleven for 1931 proved a success. Although the team did not attain first place in the league, it lost only three out of ten games played.

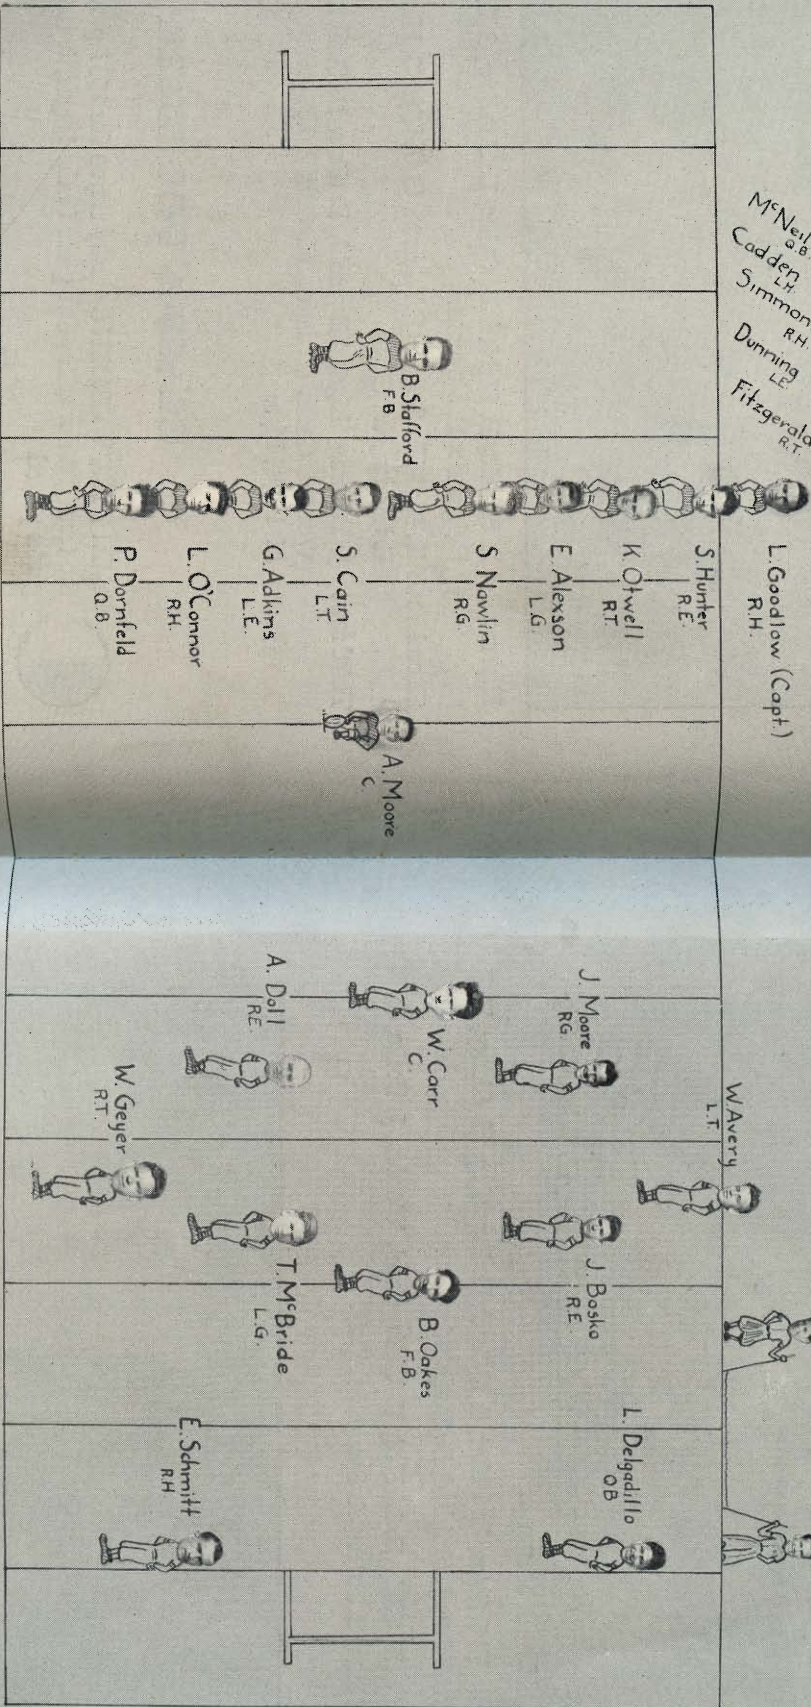

Captain Lloyd Goodlow was a fine leader whose good judgment and hard fighting helped the team greatly. Bob Stafford was recognized as the outstanding fullback in Northern California. Lawrence O'Conner was Roseville's best open field runner. Percy Dornfeld deserves credit for his blocking and making holes for Stafford.

Roseville's stone wall line was composed of Captain-elect Sylvan Hunter and Gary Adkins, ends; Kenneth Otwell and Stanley Cain, tackles; Slora Nawlin and Eugene Alexson, guards, with Archie Moore at center. The substitutes for the backfield were: E. Schmitt, B. McNeil, B. Oakes, L. Delgadillo, W. Geyer, J. Bosko and R. Dunning. The substitutes for the line were: B. Avery, B. Fitzgerald, B. Carr, B. CLASS B FOOTBALL

THE MIDGET TEAM had a hard schedule, winning from Placerville, Auburn, San Juan, Grass Valley and Yuba City, and losing to Lodi, Woodland and Sutter Creek.

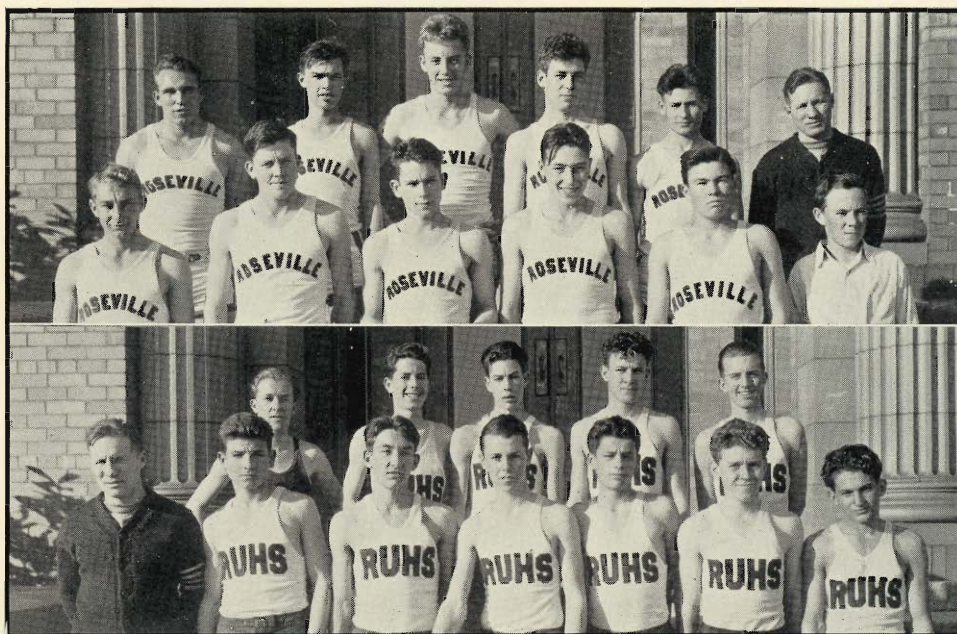

Captain Carbone was a fine leader and a hard fighter. Carbone, McNeil, Bosko and Sharp composed the backfield. Fisher, Due, Oakes, Wells, Phelps, Sparks and Goddard filled the line and did an exceedingly good job of it. The substitutes were Decater, Leles, Norden, Carroll, Cadden, Simmons, Weber, Taylor, Clancy, Downing, Cottrell, Schaeffer, Doll, Ferry and Clark.

CLASS A BASKETBALL

COACH FREDERICK'S Varsity basketball squad, although it did not come through with flying colors, and was hurt because of lack of experienced men, deserves much credit in the showing it made. Co-Captains Arnett and Goodlow, the most experienced players, led their teams skillfully through the season. Stafford and Phelps were hard to beat at the guard positions, and Avery showed up well at center. Hunter and Dornfeld, forwards, were fast, hard fighting men who will be with us again next year. The substitutes deserving most credit were Cain, Woodworth, Bosko, Picchi and Manfredi.

CLASS B BASKETBALL

COACH FREDERICK'S B quintet had a more successful year than the varsity losing only four out of fifteen games played. Captain Callaway proved to be a great benefit by his ability to lead the team. The first team was composed of Callaway and Bosko, forwards; Iscminger, center; Knezevich and Butkovich, guards. The important substitutes were: Oakes, Totaro, Longway, Reardon, Due and Fisher.

TRACK

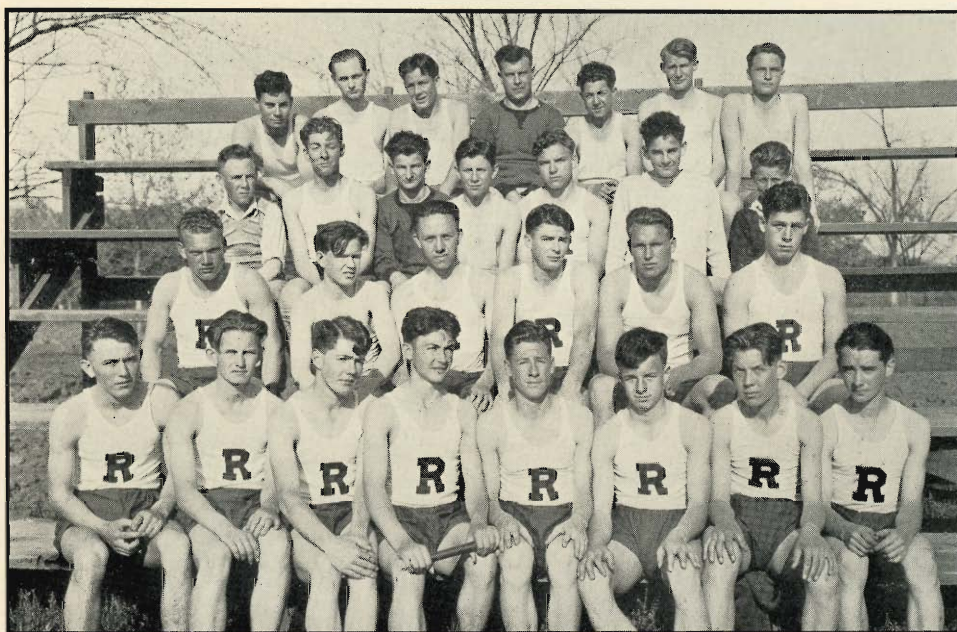

COACH WORDEN'S tracksters had a very successful year, defeating their old rivals, Auburn, and showing up well at Davis. The three largest track meets of Northern California were held at Roseville this year; the Invitational C. C. H. S. L. and Sierra Football League at which the Orange and Black showed up well. Stafford showed up strong in the shot-put and discus. Dornfeld was on the top in the high jump, javelin and hurdles. O'Connor, Painter and Geyer were the Roseville sprinters. McNeil and Reardon, the low-hurdlers, deserving credit.

First row: G. Peer, E. Clark, J. Williams, B. McNeil, E. Cadden, J. Whitney, B. Myers, B. Campbell.

Second row: S. Nawlin, C. Decater, G. Painter, L. O'Connor, B. Stafford, P. Dornfeld.

Fourth row: J. Shetterly, H. Sommers, J. Moore, Coach Worden, R. Handy, D. Hamby, F. Appel.

BASEBALL

COACH FREDERICK this year had one of the best teams in the league, which consists of Lincoln, Folsom, Auburn and Roseville. Practice games were held with Christian Brothers College and Wheatland. The Student Council this year made baseball a major sport, and much more time and effort were put in on the team. Bill Osella, veteran pitcher, did most of the hurling and was the best pitcher in the league. He was helped by his brother, Pete Osella, and Jack Miller. With Phelps as catcher, Adkins at first, Knezevich at second, Delagadillo at shortstop and Butkovich at third, a smooth infield was formed. Picchi, Hunter and Bosko were the outfielders who were hard to beat. The substitutes deserving credit were P. Osella, J. Miller, Bill Oakes, William Sakai and Ned Carbone.

TENNIS

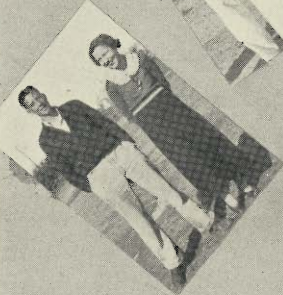

Roseville was well represented in tennis this year with Kenneth Due as No. 1 man, Andrews No. 2, Gamache No. 3, Basich No. 4, Totaro No. 5, and Henderson No. 6. There is no league for tennis in this section, but, under the coaching of Robin L. Dunn, the six men have been developed into a team that is hard to beat.

GOLF

Golf did not get so far this year as it did last year through lack of experienced men. Iseminger being the only veteran in the school this year. Those who signed up for golf were Willis Iseminger, Michael Royer, Roger Callaway, Billy Gamache and Jack Myers. The golf tournament will be held June 4.

SWIMMING

Swimming this year will be at its best with Dornfeld, Hunter, McNeil, Cadden, Callaway, Reardon, Due and Wells back from last year's team. Meets will be held as usual with Lodi, Sacramento and Stockton. The Northern California High School Athletic League meet will be held in Sacramento this year, May 21.

TUMBLERS

A GROUP of girls organized themselves into a tumbling team during lunch periods for the purpose of learning how to tumble. They formed themselves under the leadership of Minnie Ellena. Now they have organized a tumbling club and take in a new member when they think a girl is fit. Just recently they have taken in M. Morford, H. Goulard and M. Mahoney. The officers of the club are: Minnie Ellena, president; Mary K. Copeland, vice president; Harriett Preston, secretary, and Mae Emory, treasurer. They gave demonstrations at the Roseville-Auburn game and the Olympic Games. They also held a dance and intend to give a demonstration before the American Legion Industrial Fair.

These girls are to be congratulated for their splendid work. Don't you think so?

First row: L. Flachsman, E. Garbolina, S. Parkinen, M. Bell, J. Lee (Captain), M. Pfosi, M. Omohondro, B. Morford.

Second row: T. Stout, M. Lovejoy, P. Ellena, Miss Donnelly, A. Wilson, J. Hanlin, M. Otten.

Members not present in picture: D. Preisser, J. Litton, E. Ramsey.

SENIOR TEAM

THE SENIOR TEAM, although defeated by the Juniors, have a very good team. The Seniors were handicapped because some of their best players were missing. The games were exciting because the score was close during the game. The team should have received Chenille R's, because this is their last year. The girls who won awards were: Josephine Lee (captain), Mabel Pfosi, Vivian Johnson, Juanita Litton, Betty Morford, Drucilla Preisser, Perine Ellena, Edith Ramsey, Sally Parkinen, Mildred Bell, Judith Hanlin and Aloha Wilson.

JUNIOR TEAM

THE JUNIOR TEAM was victorious this year and because of their good work and hard fighting have won Chenille R's for themselves. In order to get a Chenille R each girl must have played at least one-fourth of each game.

The girls who played last year and made such a good showing are: Minnie Ellena, Katherine Butkovich, Riah Bell, Edith Wells, Gladys Somerton, Grace Sakai, Ruth Stafford, Mary Stowers, and Norina Cortapassi. Practically the same girls who played last year played this year with the addition of Helen Goulard and Lois Sisler.

The Juniors are the hard fighting champs for the year 1932.

First row: M. Pfosi, H. Doerman, L. Sisler.

Second row: R. Bell, E. Wells, Miss Donnelly, R. Stafford, M. Stowers (Captain).

Members not present in picture: M. Ellena, G. Sakai, K. Leles, H. Goulard, K. Butkovich.

SOPHOMORE TEAM

THE girls on the Sophomore team who earned their letters this year are: Ann Quilici, Tess Sotterson, Faustine Tonella, Pearl Saugstad, Bernice Taylor, Celeste Johnson, Virginia Dare, Edna Barker and Betty Oakes.

Although the Sophomores were not victorious, they played two mighty good games. They got behind their Captain and played to a finish in each game.

They played two games which were with the Juniors and Freshmen. They were defeated by the Juniors by a score of 15 to 6. The Sophomores defeated the Freshmen 21 to 8.

Second row: F. Tonella, B. Taylor, Miss Donnelly, E. Barker (Captain), V. Dare.

Members not present in picture: E. Terry, J. Arraibi.

First row: M. Morford, A. Heine, L. Knezevich (Captain), S. Kesti, J. Weiderman.

Second row: M. Kesti, Miss Donnelly, M. Copeland.

Members not present in picture: Z. Antonio, L. Naake, G. Arters.

FRESHMAN TEAM

ALTHOUGH the Freshmen were defeated in their game with the Sophomores by a score of 21 to 8, the game was fast and good. Mildred Kesti as forward, Leona Knezevich as guard, and Sylvia Kesti and Marsha Morford as side centers, all played a good game.

The girls who earned their letters on the team are: Leona Knezevich, Zelda Antonio, Jean Weiderman, Mildred Kesti, Sylvia Kesti, Marsha Morford, Lorna Naake, and Georgia Arters.

The Freshmen team has progressed rapidly and with another year of practice the Juniors and Seniors may have difficulty in holding the laurels. Come on, Freshmen, we are all behind you!

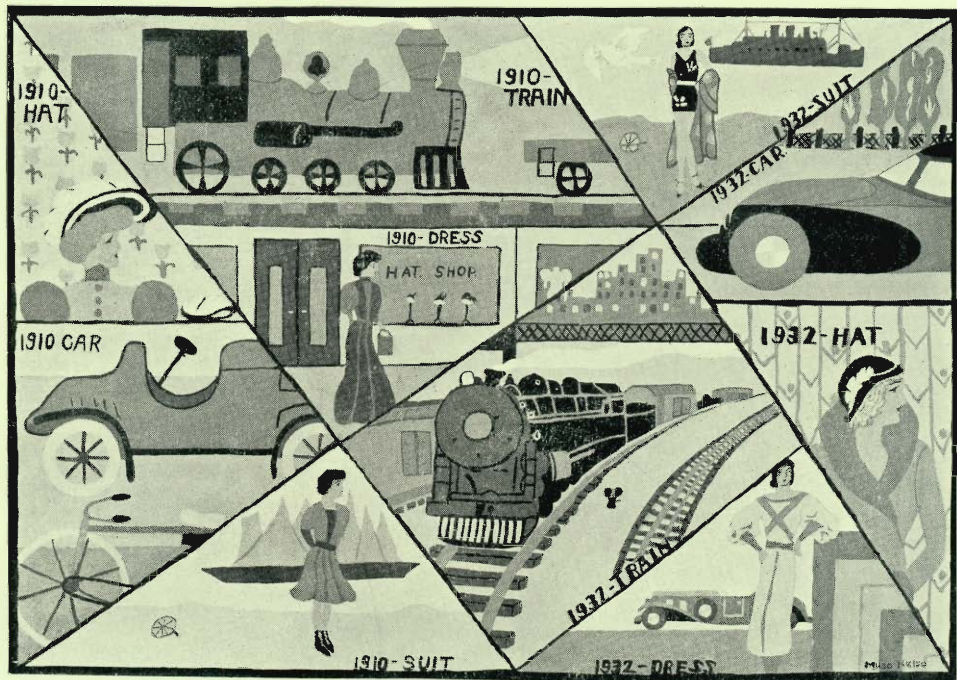

First row: William Sakai, Jack Whitney, Ellis Fisher, Thomas O'Brien, Robert Oakes, Marven Coburn, Ralph Risher, Willard Geyer.

Second row: Edna Barker, Georgia Arters, Alma Petrini, Helen Wood, Phyllis Fiddyment, Adeline Saugstad, Marjorie Otten, Thelma Stout, Mabel Lovejoy, Betty Morford.

RALLY COMMITTEE

A NEW group at R. U. H. S. this year, the Rally Committee, has already distinguished itself by the accomplishment of several excellent programs, rallies, and a very successful dance. This organization is a group of student leaders, picked from the four classes by the Student Council. Its purpose may best be realized by asking the following question: "How can we improve our school, especially its activity life?" By this committee, school spirit is fostered, interest and enthusiasm are aroused, and good sportsmanship is demanded.

ROSEVILLE FACT AND FANCY

HISTORY OF EARLY ROSEVILLE

THE railroad name of Roseville was Junction, as here the Oregon Division joined the Central Pacific. The name Roseville was derived from the neighboring ranch of Rose Spring, formerly the property of Judge James McGinley.

The town plan was first laid out in 1864. Roseville became an incorporated city in 1909 at a meeting held in Sawtell's hall.

The Roseville School District was originally a part of the Dry Creek District which was started in 1857. Doctor Schellhous taught the school in the first Roseville District in 1863. The present Roseville District was formed May 14, 1872. Doctor Schellhous taught in the first school in this newly organized Roseville district. Samuel J. Pullen and Lilly Cross taught in the second school which was the present site of the "Roseville Press." There are four school buildings in the present elementary school system. The first high school was organized in 1912. The old Roseville Hotel was used for the first school building, which stood just back of the Atlantic Street Fire House. The first board of trustees were: Dr. E. R. Waterman, A. M. Grindell, Edwin J. Schellhous, E. C. Bedell and Pauline Buddecke. These trustees represented the following districts: Center Joint, Dry Creek, Rocklin, Excelsior and Alpha. The first principal was W. H. Masters. The present high school building was completed in 1915.

Church services were held in the school building before churches were built. The Methodist and Presbyterian churches were built about 1889; the former remains in the same location but the City Hall was the first building of the Presbyterians. The Catholics held their first services in 1887 in the B. F. Royer home. The present edifice was erected in 1908 on land given by B. F. Royer.

The first merchants of Roseville were J. D. Pratt, W. A. Thomas and Wm. Bransteter. The first post office was located in Pratt's store, and then it was moved to the Thomas store; later it occupied a building of its own.

The first newspaper printed in Roseville, "The Roseville Farmer," was published by Samuel J. Pullen. It appeared on May 22, 1880.

Industries of the early days were brick making, brewing, milling and pork packing. A blacksmith shop where the first iron harrows were made was owned by A. D. Neher. He also built the first apartment house, in 1877.

The first telephone company was organized and managed by Westman Dickinson.

In 1857 a company was formed in Marysville, under the title of the "California Central Railroad Co." The Sacramento Valley Railroad builders constructed a mountain road, crossing the river at Folsom by an expensive bridge, making a course from Roseville to Sacramento of thirty-two miles, when the direct and easy line was only eighteen miles in length. The road was completed to Lincoln, October 31, 1861. The construction of the Central Pacific Railroad in 1863 to Roseville destroyed the usefulness of that portion of the California Central extending to Folsom, and business on it decreased. The section from Lincoln to Marysville was completed in 1859, under the name of the Yuba Railroad Company, but shortly afterwards was designated the Oregon Division of the Central Pacific. This had twenty-one miles in Placer County—from Roseville to Bear River—passing through Lincoln and Sheridan. The Southern Pacific moved their shops from Rocklin to Roseville in 1906. In 1909 the Pacific Fruit Express started to build shops in Roseville. They now have a capital outlay of three million dollars.

The churches were the main gathering points for religious and social affairs. There were quilting bees for the women during the day and then at night they would be joined by sweethearts and husbands for a dance or party. The dances were attended by whole families. One person would hitch his horses to a large wagon, and pile a number of chairs in the wagon and then gather up his neighbors and away they would go to the dance many miles away. The music was the fiddle and the jig, polka, Virginia reel, schottische and quadrille were the favorite dances. Besides dancing there were literary and debating clubs, spelling bees, the fraternal order of Odd Fellows, and the farm organization, the Grange.

About six miles east of Roseville in what is known as the Chaparral district there was a Rustlers' corral where the stolen horses were kept until sold.

There was an old Indian camp on the old Perry place, now Enwood, and another west of Roseville in the Dry Creek district. Other signs of camps are to be found in Elm Court subdivision, where many large mortars and pestles for grinding their food were found. Collectors have found many interesting and valuable Indian relics in and around Roseville.

THE CITY OF ROSES

PRIZE POEM

It was long ago, but I seem to see
A group beneath an old oak tree,
 Matrons and maidens all dressed in white,
 And bashful swains,—a joyous sight.
A picnic lunch had been boxed with care,
A royal feast for all who were there;
 And they spread it out upon the grass
 To tempt the honey bees that passed
Laden with sweetness from the flowers
Garnered from many sylvan bowers.
 They had gathered together that bright summer day,
 For business and pleasure must have their way.
A name for the town they needs must find,
And they had planned the day with that in mind.
 The prettiest girl in the prettiest gown
 Would furnish a name for the little town;
And when they had voted, the story goes,
They found the most popular one was Rose,
 A beautiful girl so sweet and fair,
 With clear blue eyes and golden hair.
She acknowledged her rank in a pretty way,
And in simple gladness, she graced the day.
 As Roseville, thereafter, the town was known,
 And you and I have called it home.

REMINISCENCE

PRIZE STORY

IT WAS a warm summer day in Roseville and the cool wind blew the branches of the old fig tree to and fro. It was a huge tree standing slightly back from Vernon Street, with great drooping branches that touched the ground lovingly as though long association had made it dear.

A murmur went through its ancient branches, and, like age in every clime, summoned memories as old as itself.

"Alas," the old tree breathed softly to the lesser trees nearby. "If I could show you the picturesque part as it lives in my memory! Then, I was a gay youth and the valiant Spaniards stood beneath my branches and blessed my shade. But California was not for their gallant blood to hold; yet I loved them for their gentle dignity and rejoiced to see them refreshed from their travels over the hot plains.

"Time passed by and at last I was happy to see a certain activity about me. I could scarcely believe my eyes when I awoke one morning to find the last nails had been driven and a fine building stood near me. How friendly it seemed, especially when travelers began to come and go. Mostly mining men, they were traveling between Sacramento and the mines in the foothills. Many were the tales of adventure I heard, and could I repeat them to these later day residents they might be almost as thrilling as the movies.

"Long have I stood here and watched events. I sighed when the thick growth of brush and small oaks southward from here was being cut to make way for the first railroad, in eighteen sixty-two. Often I wondered if it would be my turn next to fall beneath the ax, but a kindly fate spared me and in return I freely gave my shade and sweet fruit.

"When the road was completed and the air was startled by the shriek of whistles and the clang of bells, men began to build their homes along the friendly creek. Soon all up and down its banks were homes, and other little trees planted by loving hands beckoned to me and made me glad. Long have I watched our little town expand beneath the hand of prosperity, and always I have been a silent but thoughtful spectator as the children came and went and grew to maturity. Now we are a thriving city with broad streets, comfortable homes, splendid schools, fine churches, and substantial banks and stores.

"Still I stand by the wayside watching humanity ebb and flow, a witness to the products of man's mind and hand. By day and by night I am passed by a swift stream of automobiles; I am shaken by the heavy roll of trains; and I am thrilled by the zoom of planes high over my head. Yet here I remain content in my little sphere of life, knowing that in me lives the power to gladden the lives of those about me and that in service alone can we gain true happiness."

GRANDFATHER'S MIRROR

HONORABLE MENTION

ABOVE the fireplace hung a large picture frame. Strange as it may seem, enclosed within the frame was a mirror. This unusual piece of furnishing had hung above the fireplace, ever since Jack was able to remember. One day he asked his Grandfather about the mirror.

"Well, my boy," said Grandfather, "It's a long story, but I will tell you some of it."

"Long ago, a train of covered wagons left Illinois for California. It was thrilling, in those times, to come across the continent. I was just a boy, but I'll never forget the excitement. My pal gave me the mirror, as a remembrance. His folks had brought it from England. My father did not want me to take the mirror, but I stubbornly insisted on doing so, and so he finally gave in. It was a memorable journey. That morning when we left, the sky was as blue as a sapphire; the sun was as yellow as gold; birds were flying overhead, bison were in great herds, grazing on the vast, undulating, expansive plains. It was a beautiful picture.

"Every train of wagons that went out west, had a scout to go on ahead, to look for possible dangers.

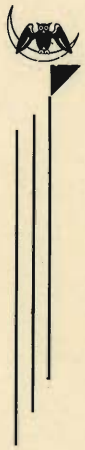

"It was like this: I had always wanted to ride a horse but my father would not let me. I had very little to do. Just about the time we were nearing the country that is now known as Arizona, our scout took sick. It was dangerous for the party to continue, as we were nearing the Indian territory. I begged to ride, but my father refused. We continued without a scout. That was a pretty piece of country we were traversing. There were tall prickly cactus plants and brightly colored flowers. With nothing to do I amused myself by sitting at the back end of the wagon, holding the mirror in my hands, so that the passing scenes would be reflected in it.

"One morning I got up with the feeling that something was about to happen. It was a bright, peaceful, sunny morning, but that strange feeling remained all day.

"We were passing through the Comanche country. Those Indians were terrors. They disliked the white man intensely. Just a few months before our journey three wagons of settlers had gone west. Nothing was ever heard of them. A note was found in a bottle by one of the pony express riders revealing the facts that the Comanches had scalped and burnt the people alive. They had destroyed every trace of occupants of the three wagons.

"About sunset we were passing through a section that had many cliffs and high rocks. Sitting in the back of the wagon and looking through the mirror I saw something that caught my eye. Standing with one foot thrust forward, and arms crossed on his chest, stood an Indian brave. Behind him I could see a glimpse of more Indians. Their gaze was fixed steadily on our wagons.

"In those days the children of the settlers were taught to face such moments with great calmness and courage. My heart almost stopped beating but I kept my head. No one else in our party had seen the Indians. We were about a quarter of a mile from them. I realized if I told my father and the Indians saw an increase in speed, they would rush down upon us. There I was holding the mirror. Suddenly something snapped within me. I had heard that almost all Indians were superstitious, especially about strange lights and shadows. I took a firm grip on the mirror, slowly moving it back and forth, to and fro. The rays of the sun flashed back on the advancing Indians. They stopped right in their tracks. I cried out to my father. We hurriedly moved forward and into the land of safety. That mirror, my boy, is priceless."

WHEN THE IRON HORSE CAME

HONORABLE MENTION

Our little town lay nestled
In the lap of the verdant hills,
Bathed in golden sunlight,
Showing life's joys and ills;
But ambition stirred within the breast
Of sturdy men and bold;
They longed for a road of iron and steel
So they staked their yellow gold.
New obstacles blocked their progress,
But staunch were their noble hearts,
And they builded the link that joined us
With far away eastern marts.
Then great was the joy of our city,
For such she came to be,
With the help of the road o'er the mountain
That stretches from sea to sea.
Now the thundering roaring monster
That brings tidings and fruits of the time,
Has helped to build a nation
Like those pioneers brave and fine.

“RETURNED”

BONES forming part of the skeleton of a human body were found today when C. W. Decater moved an old house on the alley on Washington street, near the center of Roseville's main business district. The house was built in 1908 or 1909."

The red western sun spread its golden rays over the sleepy little town of Roseville Junction at the foot of the Sierras, and as the sunset darkened into twilight the lamps shone cheerfully out of the windows of the few scattered buildings and gleamed across the cattle ranges.

There was but little excitement as the stage coach drew up to the door of the hotel. The stage was from Sacramento and was destined to reach Auburn the next day. There would be no miners returning from the hills with glorious tales of gold, only men with hopes. And hopes are never interesting to us unless they are our own.

But tonight it was different; the driver had news. Jim Trevier's term had been served; he was released from prison and was heading for the hotel.

Ten years before Trevier had been caught by the owner of the hotel, Bill Dunbar, in the act of rifling the hotel safe. Trevier had started serving his time vowing vengeance on Dunbar.

A few years later Bill's wife had died and from that time on Bill and his only daughter, Sarah, who was then about seventeen, had run the hotel. Bill was wondering now if he wouldn't be running the hotel by himself soon. Tom Wilder was a fine lad, but Bill would hate to see his Sallie leave him.

Tom and Sallie were sitting in an obscure corner of the lobby when the stage driver came in with his news. She felt very secure when Tom was there and, when he left, it was with the promise to come back early the next evening.

As he left he came upon the form of a man hiding in the trees. When Tom spoke the man ran. Tom pursued him, and when the man went into the old deserted shack about a hundred yards from the hotel, Tom followed him. Then he saw the man. It was Jim Trevier!

Trevier leaped on Tom with a knife, and they fought back and forth. Trevier had the advantage. Before Tom had his knife in his hand he had already been badly wounded. But he must protect Sallie. Would they ever stop fighting? He must win!

Then one of the forms fell and lay still. The other panted painfully for a moment and then, lifting up the trap door, carried the still form down under the building. In a few minutes he returned feebly and, picking up a package, left the shack and headed for the hotel.

The next morning Trevier was found lying in front of the hotel,—dead. There was a box of dynamite near him, but the hotel was safe. Who had killed him? Tom Wilder, was the guess of the town. And then he had left the country. No one heard of him.

The days lengthened into weeks. Weeks became months. The summer days shortened, and the October winds blew the autumn leaves across the grave of Jim Trevier.

Summer came again. The Civil War was fought and won. Bill Dunbar joined his wife, and Sallie was running the hotel. Tom Wilder was forgotten. But Sallie did not forget. Tom said he'd come back.

The hotel was sold, and the new owner turned it into a mortuary.

Sarah Dunbar went back one day, and when the October winds blew that autumn, the colorful leaves danced across her grave.

Decades passed. The little shack had been rebuilt, had grown old, and was now to be moved. They would have to dig under the place to get the rollers in place. They hit something hard. It was just an old bone. They found more. It was a human skeleton!

Tom Wilder had returned to the hotel, but Sallie was not there. Nor was it a hotel any longer—it had become a mortuary.

Tom didn't stay long. He went to the cemetery—just an unknown skeleton—and was buried in a vacant spot. It was next to an old, almost illegible stone. It looked like Samuel, or was it Sarah Dunbar?

Sallie and Tom were together again! But who can say that they hadn't been together since Sallie had gone back to the hotel?

POET'S LAMENT

I'm righting no more versus
Cuz they don't get set up write.
You hash my meater every time
And roon my fancy's flite.
And when I make correckshuns,
Gosh! You never get them strait.
I bet if I write "Devil's Door,"
You'd make it, "Golden Gait."

Miss Bradford: Now, Michael, what is a niche in a church?

"Mike" Royer: Why, it's just the same as an itch anywhere else, only you can't scratch it as well.

ROSEVILLE—OLD AND NEW

'Twas just by chance we happened on
That little burg at break of dawn;
Tired and worn we stopped to rest,
My nag an' me, a-tourin' the West.

A few old shacks, a store or two,
Composed a most unpicturesque view;
A native idler loiterin' 'roun'
One of the hangouts in the town.

Store-keepers asleep outside their shops;
A sleepy village devoid of "cops."
They called this place of peace Roseville,
And as you know it's called that still.

We camped ourselves for a day or two,
But there was nuthin' for us to do,
So me an' my nag we ambled on,
And this is what happened while we were gone

They filled the town with railroad tracks,
And great new buildings replaced the shacks;
The native idler settled down,
A business man of some renown.

No longer sleepy—a town of noise;
A school o'ercrowded with girls and boys;
A busy street; ambitious folk,
Making the old burg look a joke.

Today, riding in my auto,
I think of those days of long ago,
'Twas Roseville then, and Roseville now;
But it has changed—Oh boy! and How!

—HELEN DOERMAN, '33.

ROSEVILLE RAILROAD TRAINS

Oh, these Roseville railroad trains!
They're always in my way.
They stop me on my way from school
At half past three each day.

Each time I'm in a hurry
To go some place right fast,
There always is a railroad train
To stop my going past.

Stop! Look! Listen! and Beware!
Is all I do, it seems.
Railroad trains! more railroad trains!
They're even in my dreams.

One day when I was hungry
I turned my car towards home.
Nearby I saw a swinging bell
That made me sputter and foam.

I stubbornly kept driving on;
A crash is all I remember;
The doctors and the nurses say
I'll be mended by December.

OVERHEARD IN ENGLISH CLASSES

"But the Raven, sitting lonely on the placid bust, spoke only 55."

"After traveling on the lonely and restless desert, it was a relief to go ashore on a sunlit day on a peaceful and majestic ship."

"Of Cypress, I roamed with my soul—Of Cypress, with Pitchy (Pysche), my soul."

"The man had seen the murder by looking through the hole of the key in the door."

THE BANDIT'S GOLD

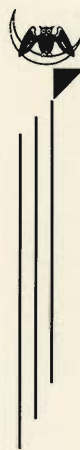

There is a story, so they say,
That there's some gold that's hidden away,
Out in a very old rock corral,
Put there by that cruel bandit, Cal.

This bandit, so the story goes,
Hid the gold from his friends and foes,
Out in a very old rock corral,
Put there by that cruel bandit, Cal.

The bandit died when he grew old,
And no one knows where he hid the gold,
But it's in a very old rock corral,
Put there by that cruel bandit, Cal.

There was a time when the pioneer
Searched for the gold year after year,
In the very old rock corral
Where the gold was hid by the bandit, Cal.

Miss O'Neil—Mary, use officious in a sentence.

Mary—When John and I fell in the lake he hollered, "O, fish us out."

THE HOBOMEN

The wind was a torrent of darkness around the old S. P. ;
The moon was a ghastly galleon tossed on a cloudy sea ;
The rail was a ribbon of moonlight through the town afar,
And the hobomen came riding—
 Riding, riding—
The hobomen came riding, in an empty old box-car.

They had battered old hats on their foreheads, and whiskers galore on their chins ;
Their coats of the dirty sack cloth, and breeches of brown pig-skins ;
They fitted with many a wrinkle ; their shoes were gone, well nigh !
And they rode with flasks a-clinking,
 Their poker chips a-tinkling,
Their fiery eyes a-twinkling, under the jeweled sky.

Over the rocks they clattered when they reached the railroad yard :
One tapped a beat with his wooden leg, and the nerves of another jarred ;
Still another whistled a song, sweet and low, while they were waiting there.
And they all patiently waited,
 Everyone patiently waited,
For the train that would take them to Daire.

And dark in the dark old train-yard, a rail-road track soon creaked,
While all the hoboos listened, their faces white and peaked.
Out of the hollows of darkness, there swept like the burst of day,
A train with a very dim head-light,
 A train with a little head-light.
It came so close in the moonlight, they had to jump from the way.

When they had all leaped from the way, they heard a ghastly cry ;
They put their hands up to their ears, and hoped no one was nigh.
Two of them knelt and tried to pray, though fear was at their side.
There was death on every side,
 And swearing on every side,
For none could see through the darkness, the one they thought had died.

When they had come back to attention, after many a sniggering jest,
They found that Joe of the wooden leg was nowhere near the rest.
"We'll keep good watch," they swore a vow, and then one man did say,
"We'll look for him in the moonlight,
 Watch for him in the moonlight,
"We'll find him in the moonlight, though he be far away."

He was not found at morning, he was not found at noon,
But they saw his hat on a telephone wire, looping the highest spoon.
They started to shed great tears of grief into a close-by keg,
And who would be in it whittling,
 Whittling, whittling—
But Joe—just whittling another peg.

- To Miss O'Neill, who has directed our finances;
- To the Parent-Teachers' Association for their unsolicited donation to our funds;
- To the merchants of Roseville for their financial support in publishing the 1932 Rose Leaves;
- To the senior janitor, Mr. Smith, who starts our day off right with his cheery "good morning";
- To the other members of the janitorial staff: Mr. Trem, Mr. Myers, and Mr. Hammond, Who keep our school buildings and grounds clean and beautiful;
- To the cafeteria staff who keep up our morale by providing us with the staff of life.

THE SENIOR CLASS OF 1932.

SENIOR WILL

We, the Class of 1932, after much concentration, heavy thought and deliberation, and being unsound of mind and feeble in body, do hereby will and bequeath, bestow, transmit, and decree, collectively, jointly, and together the following:

To the Student Body:

The secretary's minute book, to be used to start a fire.

To the Frosh:

Our worldly knowledge.

To the Sophs:

The F's we didn't make use of.

To the Juniors:

Our seats in assembly.

We take the liberty:

To bestow Phyllis Fiddymont's ability to write essays, stories, and poems upon Percy Dornfeld.

To leave Willis Iseminger's A's in Chemistry to Court Barker.

To present to Frederick Festersen the combined athletic prowess of Bob Stafford and Lloyd Goodlow.

To will Dorothy Albrecht's boy friend to Olive McPherson.

To leave Marjorie Otten's sportsmanship to next year's football team.

To leave Dora Del Dotto's extra-curricular activities to Flossie Rogers.

To leave to Sylven Hunter, Tom O'Brien's unsuppressed ego.

To bestow Thelma Stout's personality upon Helen Cronk.

To leave Jean Aske's week-ends in Berkeley to anyone with a railroad pass.

To leave Ralph Fisher's many loves to his brother, Ellis, thus giving him a good start.

To leave Adeline Saugstad's sun-tan to her cousin, Mildred—a little more won't hurt.

To leave Melvin Fogle's office as Student Body president to a member of next year's senior class.

To leave Florence Sinclair's great size to Mary Stowers.

Inscribed this thirty-first day of May, the year of our Lord 1932.

Signed,

Witnessed by:

OLD WISE OWL.

RADIO FLASHES OF 1952

MARCELLO MANFREDI has accepted the leadership of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. His friends send him heartiest congratulations.

It is said that Mr. Jack Starratt is doing the largest volume of business in New York along the taxi line. He recently purchased twenty-five new Fresh Air Taxi Cabs, making fifty in all. Mr. Starratt's success is attributed to his great interest in his work. It is said that Mr. Starratt owned one cab in his high school days.

Earl Brady has been proclaimed the most famous humorist since the time of Will Rogers. He has made several films and is now working on another which promises to be a great success.

Anyone interested in being elected to a public office, consult Mr. Roger Callaway, noted stump speaker. No money down. Results guaranteed.

Miss Judith Hanlin, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is visiting her old home town, Roseville. She has agreed to sing at the charity ball for the purpose of raising funds for the 1952 annual.

Another sensation in the baseball world was created by Gary Adkins, "Subs" pitcher. The Tiger-Wildcat game was a no-hit, no-run game, with "Gary" pitching without an intermission.

Roseville is represented in the President's cabinet this year. Mr. Frederick Stephens has been appointed postmaster general.

The national talking endurance contest was won by that world-famous convention speaker, Thomas O'Brien. This was to be expected, as a glorious future was predicted for Mr. O'Brien while he was in high school.

That famous dance team, "The High Steppers," composed of Edelweiss Garbolino and Betty Morford, has scored another success on Broadway. It was once rumored that a double wedding was to take place soon, but they seem to still be enjoying their $2000 a week!

Hooray! Harry Brown, the would-be high school football player, is now coach of the Stanford Midget football team.

That famous artist, Stanley Totaro, together with his manager, Aarne Pernu, has just arrived in New York, by hitch-hiking across the continent. Their objective was to get a good look at the scenery. These two, in this modern age of airplanes, sorely miss the dear old trains and stages.

Miss Thelma Stout was fined $10 in the local police court for landing her airplane on her neighbor's roof. The law that a person may land only on his own roof is being enforced very strictly, it seems.

The great chemistry professor, Willis Iseminger, has perfected a method by which students may pass their stiff chemistry exams. All he has to do is to go out of the room and it works!

Mr. Melvin Fogle was elected mayor of Roseville by an overwhelming majority. He promises better enforcement of the city speed laws on Tahoe Avenue, the road leading to the high school.

Local News

(Associated Yowl)

Jan. 32, 1848. — Eugieni Steal, local pugilist, on being informed he was chalked up with 1½ demerits for sassing the Gym. Janitor, buckled on his trusty forty-fives and proceeded to shoot up the office. Upon losing his match, Steal became extremely disconcerted (hot under the collar). Turning upon 946 Frosh, he loosed a burst of lead into said group. All were killed instantly. For this outrage Steal was given two days durance vile (detention). On being interviewed, Steal is quoted as saying, "I owe my wonderful popularity with the girls to Freshman's Yeast. Seven years ago I could take a bath on a damp sidewalk, now I can muscle in on any racket.

(Musical Notes)

Apr. 1, 1848. — Razzville Opera Company or local quartet makes good. Carlos Holanovitch, super basso; H. Sherlock Chastain, baritone de luxe; Sir Arppe, whistling tenor, and Baron Awl Dunn, doubtful.

The rendition of that superb masterpiece of Beef-oven's, "The Boid in the Gilded Cage," reduced an appreciative audience in Wordin's corner saloon to tears. Yea, even to gunplay. When the dead and dying were piled to one side, it was discovered that the artist had vanished into thin air. Sheriff Willie George reports that the four erring masters were found under a pile of railroad ties on Fifth street. On being interviewed, C. Holanovitch, the Russian artist, is quoted as saying: "Oh, boy, do we render that music! We just tears it apart."

Fri., May 13, 1848.—William S. de Woof, local instructor of pounding musical ability into wooden Indians, and also the author of "The Mislplaced Eyebrow," was recently removed to a padded cell. His condition, according to local authorities, was ascribed to fact that some dumb Frosh had swallowed a trombone.

Athletic Notes

Harry Brown, local heavy-weight wrestler, has challenged Primo Carnera to a catch-as-catch-can wrestling bout, in the local gym. Brown states he is confident of victory. Baring a massive muscle he proudly states: "All of my tremendous strength is due to Lionel Strongbreath's course. He made a man of me."

Mike O'Royer and Ralph Itcher have just opened their new astrological establishment. Near Starrat's livery stable. They feature Mme. Onionscenter, who sees all, knows all, tells more.

Famous historical events predicted: 1853, invention of the Bronx cheer, now widely used by astrologers; 1855, death of husband, Mike O'Royer; 1855½, O'Royer poisoned, but recovers.

P. Dornfelt announces the opening of his new Super-Cultural School. Some of the courses offered are:

- 1.—The art of bluffing teachers.
- 2.—Chemistry made easy.
- 3.—Burglary (first and second story).
- 4.—Corncob pipe making.
- 5.—Use of lipstick.
- 6.—The art of making love.
- 7.—One-arm driving.
- 8.—Use of wash rags, soap and water. The instructor is not familiar with the last three subjects named.

Famous last words: "I won't go to detention!"
