

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The executive committee is the governing body of the school. It governs the school's social activities, student body politics, and all financial business relating to athletics, Guard and Tackle, receptions and social undertakings. Its funds are derived from the one dollar entrance fee paid by each student at the beginning of the term and from the proceeds of athletic meets.

Much is expected of this committee. This term its numerous duties have been well and faithfully performed, and not once has its efficiency been questioned.

This year's executive committee has appropriated $200 for football purposes, $200 for girls' activities, $25 to the dramatic club, $135 to the Guard and Tackle Annual, and $75 to the crew. The committee awarded Block S's to the members of the varsity athletic teams.

The committee has revised the constitution, which had grown obsolete. The school had outgrown it regardless of whatever alterations could have been made. The constitution as revised is up to date and adapted to a school of this size, and because of the keen foresight of the committee appointed to revise it, it will, with slight alterations at times, adequately serve for many years. Doris Barr, Rodney Ellsworth and Everett Prindle, with the assistance of Mr. Ellis, are responsible for the new constitution almost in its entirety.

The 1918-1919 executive committee is composed of Chester Beane, president; Persis Miller, vice-president; Angelo D'Amico, secretary-treasurer; Everett Prindle, custodian; Mr. W. F. Ellis, Jr., auditor; Winifred Stout and Chauncey Lease, senior representatives; Elmer Cady and Lester Cowley, junior representatives; Sherid Moran, sophomore representative; and Doris Barr, manager of the Guard and Tackle.

Vincent Dunne was president of the committee up to April 11 when, due to ill health, he was forced to leave school. During the seven months that he was in office he served very faithfully and worked hard to bring the committee up to a high standard of efficiency.

Chester Beane was elected to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Dunne. He has proved to be a capable and businesslike president, and the committee was fortunate in obtaining his services.

The vice-president, Persis Miller, has been a hard and diligent worker for the organization, and through her the girls have been well represented.

Everett Prindle has very satisfactorily performed his duties as custodian of the student body.

Mr. Ellis, who has held the office of auditor for several years, has this term, as always, given strict attention to the duties of his office and his services have been invaluable to the executive committee.

Anglo D'Amico, as secretary and treasurer, has kept the records of the business and finances of the committee.

The class representatives have satisfactorily performed the duties of their office.

Doris Barr, manager of the Guard and Tackle, has attended to her duties on the executive committee as well as those of her office of manager of the paper, and with an ability and energy that would do credit to one of mature years.

Attendance at the meetings has, as a rule, been very good, and upon all matters that have been brought before it, the committee has acted wisely.

ASSOCIATED GIRL STUDENTS

The Associated Girl Students organized in the fall of 1916 to create a more democratic spirit among the girls of the school, and later war work became one of the chief activities of the organization. This year, under the competent leadership of Alberta Eckstrom, president of the association, these aims have been fostered. The other officers are Mary Elizabeth Hodgkins, vice-president, and Marie Weiss, secretary-treasurer.

During the epidemic the girls who had taken home nursing at school nursed under Mrs. Conzelmann, while others aided by cooking at home for the sick.

Because of the vacation, the girls as an organization were not able to prepare the usual Christmas boxes or to collect clothing for the poor. Garments for the Belgians were also gathered, and at various times candy and sandwich sales were held to raise money for the Armenian relief.

The association's activities this year consisted mostly of war work, but social functions were not entirely neglected. New teachers and freshmen were the guests of the girls' society at a reception on April 25th.

As usual, various standing committees were appointed at the beginning of the term. The athletic committee's purpose was to create interest in athletics among the girls, and the press committee has served a very useful purpose in writing for the Guard and Tackle, the girls' assemblies, charitable, social and other activities.

Although the association has been handicapped this term by the long flu vacation, much has been accomplished for the welfare of the girl students, and a remarkable amount of philanthropic work has been done.

MILITARY TRAINING

After commissions, warrants and equipment had arrived for the six cadet companies, the board of education eliminated military training as a non-essential subject. The training is to be resumed next September.

At the first meeting of the cadets in September, Major Williamson, commandant of cadets, told the boys that all had an equal opportunity to become officers in the cadet corps and that officers would be chosen by competitive work on the drill field and by oral and written examinations.

The next day drill started. Last year's veterans demonstrated a few movements for the benefit of the new cadets, and after Major Williamson had given some instructions in regard to tardiness, the cadets disbanded. By the next morning the commandant had appointed temporary captains, lieutenants and sergeants, and with the aid of Irving Neumiller and Jack Raggio, both of the S. A. T. C. in Berkeley, much was accomplished in the line of training the green cadets. From then on the cadets drilled each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Those who wanted offices drilled on Tuesdays and Thursdays also.

Written examinations on the school of the company were held during the first and second weeks of October. These examinations consisted of fifteen questions and required from one and one-half to five hours to answer. Seniors, juniors and those who were cadets the year before were the only ones permitted to take this examination. Returns on the examination were just being learned and drill was progressing splendidly when, on October 16th, the schools were forced to close on account of the influenza.

The appointments made were by Adjutant J. J. Boree on Major Williamson's recommendation.

ORGANIZATIONS

THE ENGINEERS' CLUB

The fact that over two-thirds of the boys in the high school are preparing for some branch of engineering indicates the necessity for the organization which will provide an outlet for the ideas, inventions and ambitions of these would-be engineers. Thus the Engineers' Club has attempted to provide this outlet.

The club was organized with the machine design class as a nucleus, and it has been the object of the charter members to include as large a number of interested students and teachers in the club roll as possible. By the time the organization was six weeks old twelve new members had been sworn in.

The club has held its regular meetings the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month in the new drafting room. At these meetings many interesting topics have been discussed, some of the better ones for this year including storage batteries, aeroplanes, gas engines, surveying and civil engineering feats of the present age and chemical phenomena.

Among the club's special events of the year a few will stand out in the memory of all the engineers. Among these are the luncheon given on April 16 in the cafeteria, the May luncheon, the special electrical meeting and the big banquet the first week in June which marked the close of the first year of the Engineers' Club and the good work they have endeavored to accomplish. More power to them is the sincere wish of the school.

The officers of the club are: Chief engineer, Robert Noack; assistant chief engineer, Harbert Gall; consulting engineer, H. A. Champion; recording engineer, Hamilton Roberts, and technical engineer, Ed Gilgert.

The charter members are Robert Noack, Harbert Gall, H. A. Champion, Hamilton Roberts, Ed Gilgert, Arthur Aulwurm, Gerald Robbins, Vaughn Horstman, Ted Snider, Adolph Peirano, William Gallagher, Duncan Lee and Herman Bartholomew, while the new members are F. R. Love, J. C. Corbett, J. H. Reed, Curtis Sowerby, Chester Close, J. H. Harrison, Arnold McAfee, Francis Eshbach, Clayton Gaudin, John Jackson and Byron Ghent.

ORGANIZATIONS

DRAMATIC CLUB

The activities of 1918-19's dramatic club were confined to two meetings. At the first one, Julia Tuggle was elected president, and Lucille Kitchen, secretary. Miss M. U. Howell and Mrs. Bell were chosen faculty adviser and coach, respectively. It was decided to elect other officers when more were present and to admit new members only after applicants had shown their ability through a try-out.

At the second meeting, immediately after the flu, the members were told that under the ruling of the board of education, the club had been classed as a non-essential and that in accord with this ruling, all the club's activities would be cancelled. However, the club didn't entirely pass out of existence. The funds, $25, allotted to it by the executive committee, are still in the treasury and, theoretically, the members have not entirely disbanded.

The dramatic club will undoubtedly reorganize next year with the same purpose—to promote study and interest in the drama.

COLOMBO OUTLAWS

Last year's Tipu Outlaws have long ceased to be, but this year the Colombo Outlaws have upheld the principles for which their predecessors of last year stood. The Colombo Outlaw club was organized February 12, with "Big" Kroh as its president, Baron Beane as secretary-treasurer, Alexander Davies poses as faculty representative, while Merv Dunnagan serves publicity. Other members are Fat Arbios, Lanky Bill Parker, Frenchy Violette, and Irish McGillvray. The purpose of the club has been to combine basketball and prize-fighting into one game and to promote increased food consumption through numerous banquets.

At the opening of the basketball season the varsity defeated the Colombo Outlaws by a margin of a few points. However, it is not the purpose of the Colombo club to come out on the big end of a score, but to promote rough work and revelry. In this game the club accomplished its purpose. Four of the varsity men and two Outlaws were knocked out for a minute each, most of the varsity limped to school the next day, and Mr. Cave was forced to buy a new supply of bandages and iodine.

STUDENT CONTROL

In 1914 the student control consisted of one member from each class elected by common vote, but in 1915 this arrangement was changed and now both the boys' and girls' student controls consist of five members. One member of the boys' student control, the president of the student body, is elected, and he appoints four senior boys as the other members. One member of the girls' student control, the student body vice president, is elected, and she appoints four senior girls as the remaining members of the girls' student control. The president and vice president act as chairmen of their individual committees, and the meetings are held separately.

Those appointed to serve this year on the boys' student control by former President Dunne were Chester Close, John Boggs, Rodney Ellsworth and Everett Prindle. Chester Beane, who succeeded Dunne as president, retained the same members on the committee. Persis Miller appointed the following girls to serve on the girls' committee: Gertrude Melville, Vivian Wriston, La Verne Williams and Grace Lund.

The purpose of the student control is to allow the students themselves to maintain order in and around the school buildings and to pass sentence on disorderly students. The members can not be compared to policemen with clubs or detectives with spy-glasses stalking around looking for trouble. They are merely students who have been appointed to help maintain order and to stop such things as running in the halls, talking in assemblies, and cutting classes and assemblies.

The field of activity of both the boys' and girls' committees is in and around the school and at school functions. When a misconduct on the part of a student is detected he is summoned to the student control room during the adviser period for trial. He is told the charge against him and asked if he is guilty or not guilty. He is allowed to bring witnesses to appear for him and is given in every way a square deal. His sentence, if any, is decided by the four appointed members who act as a jury.

During this year the boys' student control has handled nearly seventy-five cases, consisting of everything from throwing spitballs to holding fist-fights, and the sentences have ranged from one morning suspended sentence to twenty mornings in detention. No one was directly suspended by the committee. As might be expected, the girls have not committed as many crimes as the boys and the girls' student control has handled only twenty-five cases this term. The sentences imposed have been generally lighter than those imposed by the boys' committee and they have ranged from one morning suspended sentence to ten mornings in detention.

Both committees of this year's student control have been very successful in their aims and the students have regarded their attitude as fair and just. Because of this they have been able to work in harmony with the student body, whose support has never been lacking.

BIG 'S' SOCIETY

CIRCLE 'S' SOCIETY

SBIG "S" SOCIETY*S

The Big "S" society was founded in 1912 by Carl Ortman and Stanley Arndt for the purpose of promoting a high standard of athletics in Stockton high and for the purpose of keeping the reputation of the school and its athletes above reproach. So successful has it been in these aims that it is now one of the permanent organizations of the school and Stockton high school and her athletes have become noted for their clean playing. To win a Big "S" a student must have participated in a championship game or be a member of a championship team, and upon winning an "S" he becomes an active member of this society.

In former years, '14, '15 and '16, the society sponsored the Big "S" vaudevilles. The proceeds from these shows have been used for the benefit of the school. The proceeds of the 1915 vaudeville were used to improve the turf field, and the 1916 vaudeville helped greatly in making the Honolulu trip a reality.

The 1916 vaudeville was the last staged by the society. On March 17, 1917, the society gave a dance, long to be remembered, in the gymnasium. The 1918 Big "S" social activities were confined to a school party given in the gymnasium in November.

This year, on account of the havoc played by influenza, the activities of the Big "S," both athletic and social, have been placed in the background. However, members of the society, both those of former years and those of this year, who were out of school, proved to be "all these" when the real test of their mettle came, for nearly all, if not every one, entered the service of their country.

Those in school this year who are entitled to wear the Big "S" are Winifred Stout, president of the society; Ralph Wilson, vice president; Gene Palmer, secretary-treasurer; Leonard Santini, custodian; Vincent Dunne, Lester Cowley, Wilmarth Hildreth, Chauncey Lease, William Parker, Jewett Dustin, Lloyd Kroh, Harrold Mallory, Stanley Metzger, Albert Monaco, Robert McNamara, and Lawrence Siefert.

CIRCLE "S" SOCIETY

Two years ago at the suggestion of Amos Elliot, then physical director, the Circle "S" society was formed. Before this was organized, when students on a successful varsity team were presented with a Block "S", the hard workers on the second team, who provided the competition necessary to perfect the first team, went unrecognized. The Circle "S" society was organized to remedy this injustice and to furnish an incentive for those who, although they feel they can not make a first team, are willing to work on a second team.

Students are eligible to become members of this society who have won a position on a team which has not taken part in the Pacific Athletic Association semi-finals. In addition those who have been unsuccessful in winning a position on a varsity team but who have trained regularly on a second team, and those who have played regularly on a weight team which has competed in the final games for a championship may be awarded the emblem. Usually Circle "S's" and then Block "S's" are won, so that a Circle "S" member is eligible to win a Block "S", but a Block "S" member may not receive a Circle "S".

Irving Neumiller and Winifred Stout were president and secretary of the Circle "S" in its first year, 1916... In that year the society was formally introduced at a rally in which eighteen boys were given Circle "S's"... Joe Arbios and Ralph Wilson were president and secretary of the society during its second year, 1917-1918. Eighteen new members, the identical number of the year before, were admitted.

The men of the second basketball team this year, who worked very hard to give the first team the competition necessary to perfect it, were awarded Circle "S's". They are Walter McGillvray, Joe Arbios, Arthur Bass, Theodore Tamba, Cecil Violette and James Cavanaugh. In the crew and track meets of the latter part of the term it was expected that many more would win Circle "S's", and after these events officers for the next year would be elected.

MUSIC

THE BAND

For the past few years the school has lacked the material necessary to make a good band, but this year, with the coming of a number of musical freshmen and with the assistance of some of the veterans of last year's band, Mr. Frazee has succeeded in producing one of the best high school bands in the state. The success of this band is due largely to the faithfulness the members have shown in practicing and in being prompt at practice. John Jackson, student leader, has also contributed much to the success of the band by the wonderful ability he has shown at leading on the mornings Mr. Frazee was busy with the girls' glee club.

In February the organization elected officers. John Jackson was unanimously chosen president, Robert Patterson was elected secretary-treasurer, and Ernest Cerneu was chosen librarian. Bart Lauffer was appointed publicity man.

Shortly after the flu vacation, the band made its first appearances by holding music hours Thursday mornings. Its first appearance before the entire student body was at the basketball rally on the Friday Stockton played Sacramento. It appeared at nearly all the other rallies of the year and put a spirit into them that marked them as the most enthusiastic gatherings held in years. A great deal of credit is due the band for this and for bringing many out to the games.

This year's greater band was composed of the following:

Clarinet—	Ralph Wentz	Elbert Bidwell
Delmar Stamper	James Barsi	Leon Ravetta
Luther Bice	Ernest Cerneu	Claude Zent
Wilbur Kelling	Francis Smith	Baritones—
John Gersbacher	Charles Gill	Barton Lauffer
Richmond Copp	Mellophones—	George Ellis
Edward Wagner	Frederick Boehne	Robert Noack
Phillip Baxter	Chris Triolo	Tuba—
Betram Clausen	Earl Zeller	Gene Palmer
Saxaphones—	John Knox	William Harrington
Lloyd Cannon	Slide Trombone—	Drums—
Hubert Minahen	John Jackson	Charles Buckley
Cornets—	Robert Patterson	Walter McGillvray
Loring McCarty	Sidney Phillips

THE ORCHESTRA

When school opened in September, five boys registered for orchestra, but as the services of a musical instructor had not at that time been obtained, they made little progress. Later, Mr. Frazee was engaged and he set to work to get an orchestra started. He had recruited about ten musicians when the influenza stopped school. After the influenza Mr. Frazee and the first members enthusiastically set out to have a bigger and better orchestra than Stockton high had ever before boasted.

Mr. A. C. Blossom was employed to give outside instruction to members and beginners, and Mr. Frazee conducted stringed orchestra practice classes twice a week, which brought up the playing considerably. By the middle of April the orchestra had attained a high degree of efficiency and included twenty-five members, a record unequalled by the orchestras of former years.

The personnel of nineteen-nineteen's orchestra is as follows:

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

In the early part of February of this year, immediately after the so often mentioned vacation, the boys' glee club of 1919 was formed. It made wonderful progress in the first weeks of its existence and was advanced enough to make a very creditable appearance at the Roosevelt Memorial exercises held in the gymnasium on the twenty-first of February. "March On, Americans" and "Lest We Forget" were very beautifully sung by the club upon this occasion.

The second appearance of the glee club before the student body was in April at the basketball rally, in which Lodi, in her coffin, was displayed to the school. The dirge the club sang at this event was very appropriate and well done, except that some of the singers showed much difficulty in maintaining a sober countenance.

Out of the boys' glee club Mr. Frazee chose a quartet consisting of Howard Moore, first tenor; Dudley Allen, second tenor; Delmer Stamper, first bass, and Harold Pearson, second bass. This quartet received many requests to sing at different functions after singing at several churches on Easter Sunday.

Many of the best voices in the glee club have been recruited from the boys' choruses conducted by Miss Jones and Mr. Frazee.

Officers of this year's club were Harold Pearson and Edward Gerrish, who were unanimously chosen president and vice president; Delmer Stamper, secretary-treasurer; Carlton Black, publicity manager; and Winifred Stout, custodian.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

A girls' glee club, something for a long time needed and sorely wanted, has become a reality in Stockton high this year. The girls of the student body who had had some experience in singing were asked to meet for the purpose of forming a glee club. Many attended the meeting, which was held in the assembly hall in February, and soon a long list of girls had signed up for membership in the club. An election for officers was held and Genevieve McQuigg was unanimously chosen for president. Alberta Eckstrom was made vice-president, Wilma Merriman secretary-treasurer, Berniece Gianelli publicity manager, and Virginia Thompson librarian.

At first the club met every Tuesday and Thursday morning at 8:15 for practice in the cafeteria, but toward the end of the term it has met three mornings of the week. Throughout the year Dorothy Stowe has very efficiently acted as pianist.

The girls of the glee club have sung mostly three-part songs, they have sung them well, and Mr. Frazee is very much pleased with the high musical standard they have set. The songs most popular with the girls this year are "Gypsy Love Song", "Sweet Genevieve", "Cavalry Song" and "In Spain".

Several times during the term both the glee clubs have combined in the assembly hall at 1 o'clock for a big sing. At an assembly of the student body on May 2d the glee club delighted the student body and faculty with its singing, especially the "Gypsy Love Song". The girls participated in several other demonstrations before the school and in the concert by the band, choruses and glee clubs it took a prominent part.

This term was too short to permit of a cantata, but next term Mr. Frazee plans to divert much of the progress made this year into an opera.

The members of the glee club are Henrietta Ashley, Ethel Armistead, Kathryn Burns, Ruth Burgess, Alice Braghetta, Marcella Brownfield, Alicia Benjamin, Florence Bennett, Nova Beecher, Juanita Cozad, Rose Cormeny, Alberta Eckstrom, Lorraine Gattorna, Frances Ann Gummer, Helen Gilmore, Erliene Graebe, Berniece Gianelli, Wilma Hubbard, Carolyn Harwick, Mary Hodgkins, Moana Kuhn, Grace Lund, Dorothy Lang, Bertha Leipelt, Genevieve McQuigg, Evelyn Masters, Adelyn Marino, Vera Mowry, Juliet Meltzer, Wilma Merriman, Mildred Norcross, Helen Orton, Dorothy Rowan, Berniece Scott, Dorothy Stowe, Sallie Smith, Edna Todman, Virginia Thompson, Clomo Taylor, Gladys Turner, Josephine Vasquez, Berniece Wiley, Elizabeth Young.

THE CHORUSES

The school's musical department now includes two glee clubs, three choruses, a large band and a large orchestra, and classes in harmony, history of music, instrumental instruction and sight reading.

The choruses have occupied prominent places in the musical department this year. There is a chorus of girls and boys, a chorus of girls only and one of boys only. The girls' chorus is divided into three sections that practice twice a week and the boys' chorus into two sections that practice each day. The mixed chorus has also practiced each day. There are fifty in it, thirty-five in the boys' chorus and 130 in the girls'. The members of the boys' and mixed choruses are given one credit a term for their efforts and the girls one-half credit.

Of these the mixed chorus is the most advanced. The main object of it has been to create a taste for good music, and it has been highly successful in this. Now the chorus as a whole can read very well and has learned to "pianissimo", "crescendo" and "fortissimo" very well, much to the pleasure of Mr. Frazee.

The other choruses, the boys' and girls', were organized to serve about the same purpose as the mixed. The girls' chorus, under Miss Mildred Jones, has met for two periods each week in the "music room," the cafeteria. It has served as a training school where not only the taste for better and finer music has been cultivated, but also as a place where latent talent is discovered.

The boys' chorus has practiced in the assembly hall each day under Mr. Frazee. The improvement in ability of the individuals of this chorus to sing has equalled that of the other choruses, although it is generally more difficult to teach boys to sing than girls. As with the other choruses, popular music has been permitted but little and a taste for good music has been established. This chorus and the others have helped greatly in recruiting and producing good voices for the two glee clubs.
