

ORGANIZATIONS

Honor Scholarship Society

One of the most notable accomplishments of 1921-22 was the organization of the Honor Scholarship Society for the purpose of promoting among the students of Stockton High School, a higher standard of scholarship and, incidentally, greater interest in the various school activities. This society has supplanted the old "honor roll" of pupils receiving all "recommendatory" grades. There is more distinction attached to belonging to the society than there was in being on the roll of honor, as higher attainment is required of members. For this reason, the new society has created great interest and a striving for loftier goals by the students.

To become a member, the student must be able to show by his quarter's record that he has the required eighteen points, and that he is carrying at least four unit curriculum subjects which give credits towards graduation. Five points are given for a grade of one, three for a grade of two, and a specified number of points for holding satisfactorily an important office, taking part creditably in a play, belonging to a successful school team, or similar accomplishments. A student is a member of the society only for the quarter following the one in which he has received the necessary points. The officers are elected for each quarter, and no one can be re-elected more than three times.

The first meeting of the society was held on December 16, 1921. Miss Mary McGlothlin, faculty adviser, appointed Ray Stiles as temporary chairman, and Evelyn Sanguinetti acted as temporary secretary. A committee consisting of Edward Smith, Olive Morris, Marjorie Gear, Aliene Meyers, David Greenberg, and Thelma West was appointed to frame a constitution.

This constitution was adopted as a whole at the second meeting on January 11, 1922. Raymond Ribal, Kathryn Harris, Muriel Stroup, Thelma West, and Alfred Fisher were appointed as a nominating committee.

On January 12, 1922, the nominating committee made their report, and the following officers were elected: president, Edward Smith; vice-president, Josephine Gaia; secretary-treasurer, Evelyn Sanguinetti; and sergeant-at-arms, Tom Roberts.

The next meeting was held on January 24, when the social committee, consisting of Muriel Stroup, Kathryn Harris, Olive Morris, and George Pennebaker, made known their plans for a party to be given on February 10. The society carried out the plans.

On March 15, the nominating committee reported, and the society elected the following officers for the third quarter: president, Edward Smith; vice-president, Josephine Gaia; secretary-treasurer, Evelyn Sanguinetti; and sergeant-at-arms, Raymond Ribal. Alfred Fisher, Muriel Stroup, and Kathryn Harris were appointed as a committee on attendance.

It was agreed, on March 28, that the Stockton High School Honor Scholarship Society become a member of the State Federation.

The Honor Scholarship method of recognizing and rewarding scholastic achievement on the part of the students will doubtless grow and come to be one of the proudest achievements of this year.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Executive Committee

The Executive Committee of the Student Body Association for 1921-1922 has shown by its efficient, business-like management of school affairs and by its broad financial support of the activities of the school that it has been one of the most successful Executive Committees in the school's history.

Some of the new projects handled by this faithful and energetic body have been to enter a 120 pound and a 130 pound basket ball team in the C. I. F. league, to buy the much-needed bleachers, and to enter a debating team in the California Interscholastic Debating and Oratorical league. Though the expenditures for the various school activities have been extremely liberal, the committee has been able to show a decidedly large balance on hand at the close of the school year.

Raymond Stiles, president of the student body, has been highly successful in every way, and his ability to revive the old "Stockton High spirit" will give future presidents something to perpetuate. The vice-president, Dorothy Harper, has given the president earnest co-operation and support and has been a willing worker. The second vice-president, Wallace Rohrbacher, deserves mention for his incessant labors as chairman of the Student Control Committee. Edward Dunne, as secretary, has kept the minutes of the meeting accurately and has been an able member. The auditor, Arthur Bass, has shown great interest in his work and has proven himself very efficient.

The faculty representative, Mr. John S. Reed, has taken an extremely active part in the affairs of the school and has been of invaluable aid to the committee. The representatives from the different classes have given a great deal of time to the work of the committee. They are: seniors—Charlotte Eckstrom and Scott Ford; juniors—Helen Gilbert and Tom Roberts; and sophomore—Tom Sloan.

Robert Carr and Alvin Trivelpiece, representing The Guard and Tackle, long and short term editors respectively, have edited, without any of the promised financial apportionment of the school funds, a school paper that ranks well up among the best school papers of the state.

STUDENT CONTROL
COMMITTEE

Student Control

As a part of the student body government plan, which was established in Stockton High School by Mr. Worten, principal in 1906, was the Student Control Organization which has been in operation to date.

In 1914 the Student Control Committee consisted of one member from each class elected by common vote, but in 1915 this arrangement was changed so as to divide the work between a boys' and a girls' student control committee. One member of the Boys' Student Control, the president of the Associated Students, was elected, and he appointed four seniors as the other members. The vice-president of the Student Body, a girl, chosen by popular election, selected four senior girls to serve with her on the Girls' Control Committee. The president and vice-president served as chairmen, or judges, of their individual committees.

In the latter part of 1920, as the result of the president's duties being increased so much that he could not justly devote his time to the Boys' Student Control, a new office was created, that of second vice-president of the Student Body. The second vice-president, a boy with senior standing, was elected from the Student Body by popular vote and acted as chairman or judge of the Boys' Student Control.

This year Stockton High School added another court to its already efficient system, that of court of appeals, which is presided over by the president of the Student Body, three of the instructors, and two of the students of the school. If a student thinks he did not receive a fair trial, it is his prerogative to take his case to the court of appeals.

The Boys' Student Control Committee was very successfully chosen this year by Wallace Rohrbacher, chairman. It consisted of the following members: Tom Roberts, Arthur Bass, Gordon Wallace, John Hodgkins, Raymond Stiles, Lawrence Seifert, Edward Smith, and Earl Zeller.

Dorothy Harper, vice-president of the Student Body, showed real ability in choosing the following members to serve on her committee: Charlotte Eckstrom, Angelina Mignacco, Florence Williams, Roberta Bush, Margaret Wadge, and Grace Salmon.

The purpose of the Student Control is to allow the students themselves to maintain order in and around the school building and to pass sentence on disorderly students. When any misconduct on the part of a student is detected, he is summoned to the student control room during the adviser period for trial. He is informed of the charge against him and is asked to plead guilty or innocent. He is allowed to bring witnesses to testify in his behalf and is given a square deal in every way. If he pleads guilty or is found guilty, the judge imposes a sentence upon him which he thinks is best suited to the particular case. There have been no "cut and dried" sentences this year as there have been in previous years. The lesser offenses were given smaller sentences, while the more serious ones were dealt with more severely.

So far this year the boys' chairman has handled 115 cases and has given as the lowest sentence one period suspended sentence, and as the highest ten periods of detention. The girls' judge has handled less cases than the boys'. Her minimum sentence was one period, and her maximum, fifteen periods of detention.

GIRLS ASSOCIATION

Associated Girl Students

The organization of "Associated Girl Students" has, in the past year, ably carried out its duties and fulfilled its purpose of creating democratic co-operation among the girls. Vivian Manuel, who has shown herself to be an able and efficient president, officiated at the first meeting of the year on October 19, 1921. The other officers have been Helen Gilbert, vice-president, and Dorothy Dunne, secretary.

The president appointed the following standing committees for the year: social committee—Charlotte Eckstrom, Margaret Gealy, Helen Gilbert, Roberta Bush, and Audrey Burroughs; press committee—Bernice McArdle, Dorothy Inglis, and Clara Morris; committee on athletics—Wilma Hubbard, Grace Atherton, and Ardree Perry.

Dorothy Harper, vice-president of the Student Body, asked the co-operation of the girls in connection with the "Girls' Student Corporation": Vivian Manuel also appointed the committees for the first freshman reception. They were: entertainment and program—Charlotte Eckstrom, Margaret Gealey, Roberta Bush, Audrey Burroughs, Ruth Zuckerman, Wilma Hubbard, Helen Gilbert, and Vivian Marshall; refreshments—Janet Case, Margaret Macnider, Kathleen Mitchell, and Alice Davis; tags—Agnes McGee, Helen Westgate, and Georgia Smith.

The first freshman reception, to initiate the new girls and teachers, was held under the direction of these competent committees on Friday, November 28. The girls, who attended in a goodly number, pronounced it a great success.

The association originated a novel Christmas charity idea, which was also adopted by the boys. An assembly was called by Vivian Manuel to introduce the plan. Each adviser section adopted a family which it provided with a generous Christmas box filled with food and clothing. Charlotte Eckstrom and Morton Levy with the help of Miss McInnes, had charge of this Christmas charity work. The girls willingly responded to the call and found much happiness for themselves in giving those less fortunate a bit of Christmas cheer.

In an assembly on January 18, 1922, Dr. Goetz of the State Board of Health, who was introduced to the girls by Miss McInnes, delivered a very interesting and helpful lecture.

At a meeting on March 31, 1922, the girls decided to have a freshman reception to welcome the girls entering high school in February. They also voted to observe Mothers' Day by giving a program for the mothers of all the high school girls. This was a new idea which had never been carried out before in the school.

The second freshman reception, though held a little later than usual, on April 7, served to make the older girls better acquainted with the new freshmen, and all enjoyed a good time.

Miss McInnes, dean of girls, has kindly assisted and directed the "associated girls" in their several undertakings. As a body, the "Associated Girl Students," always willing to assist in any enterprise, have been an asset to the school.

WRANGLERS CLUB

Wranglers' Club

The Wranglers' Club was organized two years ago by Mr. Iliff and his debaters for the purpose of promoting oratory, debating, declamation, and public speaking in general.

Previous to this, debating interest had died down, but with the advent of this club, debating and oratory have played a real part among the school's activities.

The club is divided into four classes: cads, those preparing a debate; junior wranglers, those who have participated in a debate; senior wranglers, those who have won a debate; and grand wranglers, those who have won five debates.

Thomas Quinn, Edward Smith, and Mr. Iliff, the coach, are the only members who have attained the last honor.

A comic ritual written by Mr. Iliff is used in the initiation of new members, a ceremony held in the assembly once a year. The officers for the club have been: Edward Smith, warden; Arthur Bass, scribe.

The Wranglers have, on several occasions, sent speakers to the various clubs in the city. They also took an active part in the county fair last September, presenting a play, "The Mousetrap."

The senior wranglers of the club are: Miss M. U. Howell, teacher of public speaking, and the following students: George Pennebaker, Carleton Rank, Robert Carr, Carroll Cole, Fred Spooner, George Ilgenfritz, and Tom Connolly.

The junior wranglers are: Henry Coffin, Leslie Harper, Gardiner Duff, and Howard Gardner.

The honorary members of the club include: Sherid Moran, Harry Lusignan, Arthur Bass, Max Newstat, and Dedrich Anderson, all of last year's debating teams.

Science Club

The First Stockton High School Science Club was organized in November, 1921, by Calhoun Reid with the help of Edward Smith, representing physics; Henderson McGee, chemistry; Kenneth Culver, physiology; Philip Baxter, biology; and Alvin Trivelpiece, general science. The purpose of the Science Club is to promote research in the science departments of the school, and to arouse appreciation of the efficiency and progressiveness of these departments.

At a later meeting a constitution was adopted, and the following officers elected: president, Calhoun Reid; vice-president, Edward Smith; secretary-treasurer, Henderson McGee; laboratory manager, Alvin Trivelpiece; and sergeant-at-arms, Alfred Fisher. Sixteen of the brightest boys in the science classes were then elected to membership in the club.

This club has been given free use of all the laboratory equipment of the school. Taking advantage of these opportunities, they have carried on many successful experiments in research work.

Many of the members have taken so much interest in their organization that they have read scientific books, and given some instructive talks on the various branches of science and the principal scientific laws, explaining them in detail and giving an account of the discovery of each law and its effect on science today.

To help increase the members' knowledge, books on science have been loaned to the club by some of the members and others interested. The library thus collected has been a great asset to the club.

Much scientific information has been cheerfully given the club by the various science teachers of the school. Talks have been delivered by Mr. A. L. Caulkins, teacher of chemistry, on "The Value of Science In Every-day Life," and Mr. Snook, teacher of biology and physiology, on "Science As a Life Study."
