JUNIOR HISTORY

(Over the Radio)

This is radio J-U-N-I-O-R broadcasting from Stockton High School, through the courtesy of the class of 1925. This station will now come on the air—.

The class of 1925 entered the classic halls of Stockton High School in September, 1921. Choosing as their leaders, Don Carr, Alberta Horan, James Whitmore, Jack Eccleston, and Osborne Bigelow, they were led through a happy, prosperous, and eventful year.

In the election of the second year Melvin Belli, Dorothy Carrow, Ed Peckler, and Bill Mahaffey were chosen as officers. A big event of this year was the sophomore play, "Come Out of the Kitchen," which was put on to a packed house in the new auditorium. This year several of the class members displayed marked ability in the freshman-sophomore oratorical contest, Melvin Belli being declared the greatest orator in the two classes. Another year passed, finding the class all juniors. In this year Jack Eccleston rose to the mighty position of supreme ruler, with Ruth Ferguson as vice-president, Ethel De Vol for secretary and treasurer, and Ovid Ritter for sergeant-at-arms. This year the class celebrated with a big mid-term junior-senior dance, which "went over big."

Well, as it is now 12:00 o'clock and the radio story is over, before saying goodnight, we sincerely hope that everyone will have a chance to meet some of the members of this interesting class in the near future.

SOPHOMORE HISTORY

(Radio Bedtime Story)

Now, Willie, lie down, and I will tune in for the bedtime story. To-night it is to be about a sophomore class in Stockton High School in the year 1923-1924. Listen, for you, too, may be a big S. H. S. sophomore some day.

"Once upon a time, maybe about two years ago, a big bunch of little boys and girls entered Stockton High School. In their first year these children made quite a few records, but it is more important to tell about their second year, because they were one of the most ambitious sophomore classes that you will ever hear of.

"One day in last October this class held a big meeting and an election to see who should lead them through the year; so they elected Emmett Johnson president again; Evelyn Jones, vice-president; Huntley Haight, Secretary-treasurer; and Harry Webster, sergeant-at-arms. With these leaders and the whole class pulling together, they succeeded in having five men on the football team, five on the basket ball team, four on the swimming team, and five on the baseball team.

"Athletics was not the only thing this wonderful class thought of, either, for they had more members on the Honor Scholarship list than any other class that year. They also liked to have good times because they had a big sophomore dance with "eats" and everything good.

"Sophomore teams debated with Sacramento the first semester, and the class officers helped entertain the visiting debaters at luncheon. Another group of sophomores will debate the second semester with other schools. In fact, sophomore debating has become a fixed activity with a constitution. The sophomore class won, too, in the freshman-sophomore oratorical contest, which they won the previous year while still freshmen.

"You can see by this story, Willie, what an ambitious class this was and how enthusiastic its members were, and now you go to sleep and dream about the wonderful day when you will be able to be a member of a wonderful class like this in Stockton High School."

FRESHMAN HISTORY

Dere Marg,

Oh! I have so much to tell you. I'm a big girl now. I'm in his school. Ruth and Rose and Jack and Bill and all the other freshmans went into the large building on September forth. But umph! when we got inside the house everybody looked at us so funny and they caled us orful bad names, green and scrub and freshie and my, my! there is some conseated children up there. They walk around like they was the teachers and they is only the juniors and seniors.

After we was up there at that schol for a wile they give us girls a reseption and eats too but they didn't give the boys none. Then after a wile we elected our leaders. Marg you should see our president he's such a nice good boy and he's brite too. His name is Merveyn Garybottle and our vice president's is Georgie Manual. She has an lovely smile. We've got a big strong boy for sargent-tarms Mervun Littlefiel.

There was a contest between the freshmans and sophomores onest to see which side could talk the best on exemploranium topics or say poems and orashuns. We didn't win but we did mighty good and we'll beat next time. Lots of the children showed themselves proud and got there names on the Honor paper but lots a others took pink slips fer there's.

Sumemore freshmans come in on February 11th and then ge give an orful nice dancing party, every body had a good time. I hope you'll come visit me and I'll show you every thing and introduce you to all the teachers. All us freshman knows them all, cause we've either been axsidently on purpose shued against them or met them in suppersived study or retenshun.

Well goodby for a wile,

As ever yours,

—Clara Catherine.
