Girls' League

Miriam Gealey

ALL girls entering Stockton High School automatically become members of the Girls' League. This organization was founded to create a better friendship among the girls in Stockton High. The old name of Girls' Association was dropped this year, and the name of Girls' League was adopted.

The uniforms were successfully carried through during the fall months, but no satisfactory uniform was found for the winter weather. Miss Alice McInnes and the committee expect to have by next semester a uniform both inexpensive and neat, suitable for winter wear. Easter vacation again brought back a colorful display of dresses to the campus. The uniforms are same as last year with the exception of a slight raising of the waistline.

With Miriam Gealey as president of the League, many interesting and entertaining programs and worthwhile projects were given. Miss Stella Johnson of the home economics department told the girls about her Egyptian travels. Another faculty member, Miss Ovena Larson, gave her impressions of the Scandinavian countries. Miss Grace Steinbeck, a Y. W. C. A. worker of China, gave a talk on the problems of Young China. Many girls of the league entertained with music, dances and readings. Large white chrysanthemums mounted with the blue S were sold by the members of the Finance Committee during the Lodi game, with the purpose of raising money. In January a meeting was held to bid adieu to the graduating class. Ralphine Brady gave the farewell speech, and Elsie Mae Graves responded.

The annual Girls' League convention was held in Alameda in October, and, as Miss Alice McInnes was not able to accompany the girls, Miss Catherine Humbargar made the trip with Miriam Gealey and Henrietta Dietrich.

The officers of the year were Miriam Gealey, president; Bernice Gilmore, vice-president; Lucille Ellis, secretary-treasurer; Geraldine Hammett and Mary Jaume, song leaders. Members of the different committees for the year were, Program Committee: Norma Powell—Chairman, Jacqueline Kappenburg, Claire Ellis, Adeline Read, Margaret Ritter, Margaret Downs; Absent Girls' Committee: Nancy Jane Toms—Chairman, Frances, Logan, Virginia Morris, Natalie Stitt, Delores Reiman, Myra Douglas, and Miss Gertrude Robbins, adviser; Scrap Book Committee: Miss Stella Johnson's adviser; Finance Committee: Geraldine Hammett—Chairman, Crystal Reynolds, Helen Danner, Anne Harrison, Ethel Poynor, Golden Grimsley, Genevieve Carlson, and Miss Alice McInnes, adviser; Girls' Room Committee; Ruth Garden—Chairman, Emelyn Dunn, Marie Brown, Josephine Brown, Ruth Crary, and Mrs. L. W. Chestnutwood, adviser; Executive Committee: Marian Linabary, Dorothea Wood, Shizue Nakahiro, Elsie Orsi, Lucille Steinhart, Geraldine Tretheway, Winifred Wilson, Norma Tabacco, Lillian Hinton, Vivian Hanley, Edith Dola, Willa O'Neil, Ruby Marciano, Sarah Shuster, Norma Harris.

Social Service Club

NOT only to become familiar with social service work locally and its needs, but to do helpful bits of service are only a few of the aims of the Social Service Club. This year marks the third and most active of the club's organization. The girls helped with a Hallowe'en party at the Children's Home, and they also gave the children a Christmas party.

During the year the club has had various speakers to tell of the work in the social service agencies in Stockton. On January 2, Dr. J. D. Dameron spoke on "The Crippled Children of the United States." Mrs. E. C. Stewart, Miss Alice McInnes, Miss Emma Hawkins, and Dr. Sippy have also spoken to the club at various times.

The girls worked out a questionnaire dealing with the work and service rendered by different organizations. The club members, in groups of two, have presented these questionnaires to prominent local agencies such as the Health Center, the Old People's Home, St. Joseph's Home, Dameron Hospital, the Day Nursery, and the Children's Home. They have received some very valuable knowledge from these papers. The club has a subscription in the Crippled Children's Fund.

Money to aid the girls in their projects was raised by serving a dinner for Miss Concannon, National Junior Red Cross Representative; by selling Christmas cards, and a booth on Tacky Day.

The Officers of the club were president, Rae McCollum; vice-president, Helen Danner; and secretary-treasurer, Norma Powell. The sponsor of the club was Miss Marilla Dunning.

Stuart Douglas

Rudolph Weber

Year by year the local chapter of the Junior Red Cross has been spreading its influence into distant fields. It has gained recognition as one of the oldest and most continuously active chapters in the state. It gained national prominence through two articles in the High School Service magazine telling about local activities and the Red Cross Vodvil. The chief activity of the past year was in organizing county high school chapters of the association by a public speaking campaign. Delegates from Stockton attended two regional conferences. Miss Mary Concannon, Assistant National Director, spoke to the student body on November 5, giving the history and progress of Junior Red Cross. Mr. Otto Lund, Field Director of the Pacific Coast Division, also spoke on different occasions. One hundred and forty three Christmas boxes were sent to children in Guam. Twenty-five dollars was sent to the Veterans' Hospital at Whipple Barracks, Arizona. This service has been going on annually for a period of eleven years. Twenty-five dollars was sent to the Naval Hospital at Bremerton, Washington, and fifty dollars to the National Childrens' Fund. This was the largest contribution received from one school.

International Good Will Day was held in May, incoming freshmen played an important part and Junior Red Cross work in the grammar school is increasing. The high school received its greatest help this year from Mrs. E. C. Stewart, Chairman of the Senior Chapter, and Mrs. B. E. Swenson, County Chairman of the Junior Red Cross. Stuart Douglas was chairman of Stockton High School's chapter, and Winifred Wilson was secretary. Rudolph Weber, past chairman of the Stockton High School J. R. C. is now assistant chairman of the San Joaquin J. R. C.

Honor Scholarship Society

DUE to the more stringent requirements adopted by the Honor Scholarship Society this year, the membership was considerably smaller than it had been in previous years. The new and more restrictive method of classification was made necessary by the new grading system and by the change from the quarter to the semester basis for membership. Ninety-six students were eligible for the Society for the first semester. The delegates to the convention of California Scholarship Federation held at Roseville December 14, 1929, were Eugene Foppiano, Bill Campbell, Ruth Fuller, and Miss Elinor Malic, faculty adviser. Those who attended the convention at Auburn on March 22 were Bill Campbell, Barbara Kroeck, Henry Schiffman, and Ruth Fuller.

Scholarship Society

Dr. Tully C. Knoles, president of the College of Pacific, spoke at the scholarship assembly held on October 21, 1929. Fifty-six certificates were awarded to students at this assembly for four quarters' successive membership in the Honor Scholarship Society for the periods from February 1928 to February 1929, and from September 1928 to June 1929.

The officers of the Honor Scholarship Society for the first semester were Eugene Foppiano, president; Claire Ellis, vice-president; and Ruth Fuller, secretary-treasurer. For the second semester they were Bill Campbell, president; Barbara Kroeck, vice-president; and Ruth Fuller, secretary-treasurer.

Tri-Y

THE adoption of the Bungalow Elementary School as a special project was the most important thing done by the Tri-Y girls in the year 1929-1930. The school, situated in the Boggs tract, has only the first four grades with an enrollment of about forty. All the welfare work of the club was limited to the Bungalow children. A Hallowe'en party was the first step taken. This was followed by an elaborate Christmas party, a tree, Santa Claus (Faith Strong), and three gifts apiece as the special attractions. An Easter egg hunt was also given.

This club helped its co-organization, Hi-Y, to put on a three act mystery play, "The House of the Flashing Light." This was presented February 28 in the high school auditorium. Six girls had parts in the play, and eight more ushered. Financially the play was a success, and the funds were used in the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. for equipment. The girls had a grand time serving at the Hi-Y "Varsity Night" banquet. Much could be said about the way the dishes were washed and the banquet room cleaned up, but most of the club members know who is writing this.

A committee from Inner Circle worked over and revised the induction ritual to fit the use of Stockton's chapter. The new ritual was used in the two semester inductions, and was found satisfactory.

Miss Ida C. Green, of the English department, was originally the faculty adviser. However, about the middle of the first semester, she was forced by other responsibilities to give up this assignment. Since then, the girls have worked directly under E. M. Bunnell, boy's secretary at the "Y." Officers for the first semester were Winifred Wilson, president; Norma Harris, vice-president; Eunice Martin, secretary; and Julia Baskin, treasurer. Geraldine Stackpole as vice-president, and Jane Eicke as secretary-treasurer, served the second semester.

Tri-Y Club

Hi-Y Club

PROFESSOR WERNER of the College of the Pacific gave a talk about Modern Youth, on September 24. Varsity night was held on December 16. Mr. Ellis was toastmaster for the evening. Dr. Werner told about the origin of the Christmas tree. Among the other speakers were Dean Fred Farley of the college, James C. Cave of the high school, "Moose" Disbrow of Pacific, Jack Johnson, and Joe Valverde. Alex Emerson entertained with Scotch songs. A conference for older and younger boys was held at Asilomar on December 6, 7, and 8, at which six Stockton delegates were present. On December 5 the local Hi-Y and Tri-Y Clubs presented a three act mystery play, "The House of the Flashing Light." Miss Verda Franklin of the College of the Pacific coached the play. The local club took active part in the Californiad, at San Jose, winning first place in dramatics by their presentation of Bible parables. Those in the presentation were Willard Hancock, Howard McBride, Orville Bresee, Malcolm White, and Joe Valverde. The aim of the Hi-Y association is "To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards for Christian character."

The adviser for the first semester was Wesley G. Young. "Bill" Kerr took over the duties on March 5. The officers for the first quarter were, president, George Stevens; vice-president, Malcolm White; secretary, Elbert Liesy; treasurer, Clarence Rice; sergeant-at-arms, Fred Lefevre. The officers for the second quarter were, president, Joe Valverde; vice-president, Loyal Miner; secretary, Willard Hancock; treasurer, Howard McBride; sergeant-at-arms, Jack Bainbridge.

Hi-Y Club

Pan-Pacific Club

PAN-PACIFIC CLUB

The Pan-Pacific club was organized in an attempt to get a better understanding of the nations bordering the Pacific. In order to do this the club has had many interesting speakers tell about the different countries that they had visited.

At the meetings of the club a number of students made talks. Harvey Werner spoke on "My Impression of Latin America", Howard Hammond talked on Japan and the love of the Japanese boys for comradeship, and he urged the boys to take the trip which is called "Hands Across the Pacific." Curtis Swan, who recently went from Idaho to Mexico City, gave an account of the interesting mines he visited. Miss Adeline Selna of the faculty told of the various types and the curious habits of the people of Mexico. Miss Virginia Short, also of the faculty, gave her impressions of Hawaii. The soft music and receptions that they give to visitors were some of the things she spoke about.

This year the Japanese club gave a unique program of native songs, dances, and music before the Pan-Pacific club. Mr. W. G. Young, faculty adviser of the club, had these entertainments in order to give the students a better conception of the true habits and customs of the Japanese people. The Filipino club also gave a native program before the club. These little programs gave an idea of the true Filipino music and dances.

Loyal Miner was president the first semester, and Daisy Neuman, secretary-treasurer.

The officers for the spring semester were Eric Walters, president; Daisy Neuman, vice-president; Olive Pugh, secretary; Catherine Hall, treasurer.

Quill and Scroll

FIVE writers of the "Guard and Tackle" placed in the national and in the Pacific Coast division of journalistic contests conducted by the national Quill and Scroll society. An editorial by Clarence Craig placed fifth in the nation-wide contest for creative work sponsored by the Quill and Scroll, Mabel Chipman placed fourth in the newswriting division, and Henry Schiffman placed fifth in the editorial contest on the Pacific Coast. Later in the year Inez McNeil won fifth place in the newswriting division of a similar contest. Keith Thomas carried off fifth place in an "ad" writing contest. The society pledged itself to assist in advertising the annual and to help choose material to be used in the literary section of the book.

The local chapter of the Quill and Scroll was organized in June, 1928. This year the society spread to Europe and is now an international organization. Members of the weekly or the annual staff who are in the upper third of their classes scholastically and who are recommended by the faculty adviser of journalism are eligible. The members of the Quill and Scroll are Winifred Wilson, Keith Thomas, Henry Schiffman, Nadine Keller, Ellenora Gonyou, Eugene Foppiano, Edith Nieman, and Clarence Craig. The officers for the year were, president, Eugene Foppiano; vice-president, Winifred Wilson; secretary-treasurer, Keith Thomas. Miss L. Lucile Turner is faculty adviser. Elsie Mae Graves is the member who graduated in January.

Press Club

Press Club

The Press club planned many activities for the year but due to the lack of sufficient members interested in such outside work very little was accomplished. At the March meeting Mr. Luigi Vannuccini gave a very interesting and instructive talk on Italian newspapers. Mr. Vannuccini worked on papers in Italy for a number of years and was able to show the vast difference between Italian papers and ours. In Italy such things as murders, robberies, and suicides occupy very little space. All national and international news is given first page space. Art, drama, and music articles by famous men are a feature of nearly every daily newspaper. Mr. Vannuccini also owned newspapers in this country. At the January meeting David Ritchie told of his work on the "Daily Californian." The officers for the year were Vernon Altree, president; Clarence Craig, vice-president; Elsie Mae Graves, secretary-treasurer.

STAMP CLUB.

"How much am I bid for this Czechoslovakian stamp? Going fast! Sold!" Some lucky person had gotten a new stamp to add to his collection.

The Stamp Club is something new in Stockton High. It was organized in October under the leadership of Mr. B. L. Welker for the purpose of getting together those who are interested in stamps.

The officers for the first semester were, president, Morris Silverman; secretary, Fred Strout; auctioneer, Charles Webster. Those for the second semester were, president, Charles Webster; vice-president, Jack Burnett; secretary, Bud Reiman; auctioneer, Henry Farley.

BOYS' SCIENCE CLUB

The Boys' Science club had a very full program this year, and did many interesting things. During the first semester, the boys, chaperoned by Mr. Snook and accompanied by Alice Baker, who, as president of the Philophysean club, represented the girls, visited Golden Gate Park. This trip is an annual event, and is a very eagerly anticipated occurrence. On another occasion, the club members were conducted through the Miller Plating works, where they had the entire plating process explained to them. The social side of the club affairs was not slighted, as the combined science clubs held a banquet at the beginning of the term, on the proceeds from their Tacky day "Ghost Show." During the Hallowe'en season, the two clubs held a costume Barn Dance in an almost-empty barn on Linden Road. During the second semester, the boys took their annual second semester trip, going to Mare Island to visit the Naval Base. The term was closed with a picnic at Dad's Point.

Professor C. L. White, of the College of Pacific, gave the boys a very interesting general talk on engineering. The boys worked out various projects in which they were particularly interested, and reported on them at some of the meetings; talks on scientific subjects were given to them by Messrs. Snook, Corbett, and Sweet.

During the first semester, Mr. Snook, who had been faculty adviser for the Boys' Science club for two years—ever since it was founded—resigned this position, and Mr. Sweet, on request of the club members, became the new adviser. The officers of the club for the first semester were James Snook, president; Warren Pugh, vice-president; Charles Webster, secretary; and Bob Stone, treasurer. For the second semester, Virgil Gianelli was president; Malcolm White, vice-president; Charles Webster, secretary; and James Snook, treasurer.

Boys Science Club

Philophysean Club

PHILOPHYSEAN CLUB

The first social event that this group of not-too-serious young scientists participated in was the Barn Dance, a costume affair, which was held at Hallowe'en in conjunction with the Boys' Science club. After this merry beginning, the Philophysean club settled down to a year of great accomplishments, one of the most important of which was the complete re-making of the club constitution. Miss Snyder, from the Health Center, gave an interesting demonstration and talk on first aid at one of the meetings, and Miss Reardon, a nurse from Saint Joseph's hospital, occupied another meeting with a highly entertaining and educational account of the work of the nurses before and during the great war.

The last semester, which was started off by a joint Science Club banquet, was the setting for three of the most outstanding events of the year. The girls were consigned to two sections, and a contest was held for the best scrap book. A pageant, written and directed by Alice Baker, was given, and was pronounced a great success. It portrayed the dreaming of an evidently scientific-minded young lady, who visioned the great scientists of ages past in their various accomplishments.

Due to the eccentric leaving and unexpected returning of several of the club officers, the political occurrences of the year were rather confusing. The girls who were voted to office at the regular June election were Alice Baker, president; Louise Newbarth, vice-president; and Alice Owens, secretary-treasurer. Alice Baker transferred during the first quarter, and a new election was agreed upon and held. The new officers were Alice Owens, president; Louise Newbarth, vice-president; and Alfa Silver, secretary-treasurer. Alice Owens left, Louise became president, and the prodigal Alice Baker, having returned, became vice-president. As Alfa Silver graduated in February, Anna May Snook was elected secretary-treasurer.

Key Club

Key Club

THE Key Club has been organized in this school for two years and is the second oldest organization of its kind in the west. Sacramento High School organized a Key Club first. The membership has steadily increased during the past school year, now reaching a total of thirty-five. The club works in co-operation with the men's Kiwanis Club. The members are assisted in choosing their vocations by the Kiwanis. The Key Club presented two entertainments during the past year at the meetings of the Kiwanis Club, both of which were very well received. The club also contributed to the Kiwanis' Christmas Tree. There are many such clubs now throughout the western high schools.

Gene Jenkins was the president for the fall semester of '29 and Earl Renney for the spring semester of '30. Both presidents had very successful terms. The club met once a week for a luncheon together.

Vocational Clubs

SIGMA ETA PHI

The Sigma Eta Phi was organized at Stockton High School two years ago. To be a member of this club, a student has to be doing co-operative work in the Vocational Department and must be one of the best two workers of his class. The two chosen work alternate weeks down town to gain practical experience, and then automatically become members of the club. The purpose of the organization is to promote Skill, Honor, and Friendship, which are symbolized in the Greek name Sigma Eta Phi.

The boys have a picnic once a month and also take other interesting trips. In February they made a trip to San Francisco to visit the auto show. A snow party was held at Long Barn January twelfth. On April twelfth they enjoyed an outing at Jackson.

This year the club was divided into two groups in order to promote better attendance. Jack Hunt was at the head of one section, and Russell Duniho the other. The division with the poorest attendance must treat the other group to a feed. It is considered quite an honor to belong to this exclusive organization, and it is the aim of every vocational student to achieve this honor. The officers of the Sigma Eta Phi for this year are Russell Duniho, president; George Miller, vice-president; Lennis Tupper, secretary; Jack Crampton, treasurer; and Jack Hunt, sergeant-at-arms.

THE WOODCRAFTERS.

The Woodcrafters reorganized this year to carry on the work of last year. The purpose of the club is to promote better cabinet makers. An event that is always looked forward to by the members is the annual trip to one of the furniture factories of the bay district. This year eighteen boys, accompanied by Mr. Ira L. Van Vlear, the instructor, visited Mortons, a furniture factory in Oakland. The trip was made by boat. The boys, in addition to acquiring useful knowledge, had a good time, many of them returning home "broke."

The officers of the Woodcrafters are Earnest Sutton, president; Glenn Holt, secretary-treasurer; and Edwin Sanders, Red Cross Representative. Miss Berdie Mitchell is the faculty adviser.

Western Harvester Class

ONE of the most interesting courses offered in Stockton High School is the Western Harvester-Stockton High School Vocational course.

This study offers a boy instruction in vocational work as well as remunerative work itself. The boys go to work a part of the time and study about their work the rest of the time.

This course is under the direction of L. G. Bond, who instructs the boys in Foundry Practice, Pattern Making, Printing, Plumbing, Drey Making, Painting, Electric Furnace Operation for Making Steel, Sheet Metal Work, Lithography, Millwright, and Mechanic Work.

This course was started in January 1927 on a co-operative basis. When boys are needed the placement secretary of the part-time school interviews a group of them and they are sent over to the plant. The best of the group is then taken for work and instruction. So far, all the boys have shown exceptional ability, and the director of apprentices is well pleased with them. The boys are appreciative of the attention shown them in their work and are making every effort to please all concerned.

The school work is all done in the Western Harvester plant. The Company has fitted up a class room that would be a credit to any public school. It is well lighted, heated, and ventilated and has an abundance of floor space. Here the boys carry on the experimentation with metals and other substances. They take tests of different sands and learn to classify them.

Golden Hoof Club

THE GOLDEN HOOF CLUB

One of the classes in Agriculture at Stockton High School has launched into true vocational education. Ten promising boys have been selected from a large group who wish to become live stock farmers and get started in the business while young. A heavy five year program has been outlined, in which the boys, outside of school hours, will strive to master every phase of sheep husbandry.

Co-operating with the boys in their study will be a group of the leading sheepmen in California. Professor Robert Miller, sheep specialist of the College of Agriculture, is also assisting Mr. J. Mitchell Lewis, who has charge of the agricultural work in Stockton High.

The boys in the class now own seventy purebred Rambouillet sheep procured from the famous Charles A. Kimall ranch at Hanford. The animals are being kept at the high school practice farm and after two years will probably be placed on the open range. It is planned to increase the flock to 1000 purebred animals as rapidly as possible. Every effort will be made to provide the boys with available data on the sheep industry and to get them contact with the leading sheep men of the state. Such training, along with the actual ownership and management of a flock of sheep, should aid the boys in becoming practical and progressive sheepmen. Members of this club are George Stevens, Carl Stevens, Edward Jenkins, Gene Jenkins, Andrew Miner, Karl Ehresman, Wilbur Blewett, Nathan Damon, Lester Brumbaugh, and George Sanguinetti.
