Social Service Club

THIS YEAR the Social Service Club made its aim not only helping the needy, but observing the methods applied by others in this field. This is the fifth year of the club's organization. Miss Marilla Dunning is sponsor, and eleven new members were elected, bringing membership to fifteen. The officers for this year were, president, Peggy Lukenbill; vice-president, Edith Beardslee; secretary-treasurer, Bernadine Grogan; sergeant-at-arms, Jean Brandt.

During the year the girls had various speakers to tell of social service work done in this locality. Doctor George Sanderson told of the San Joaquin Clinic for Crippled Children. Miss Eleanor Young spoke in March on the Braille system of reading for the blind, and demonstrated Braille writings.

Two field trips were outstanding features of the girls' year. During the first semester the club spent one day as guests of Doctor O'Conner at Bret Harte, inspecting the institution and learning of its facilities. The second trip in March was an inspection of the State Hospital. The club finished the year's work by sending a girl to the Camp Fire Camp. The money for this and for their charity work was obtained by candy sales, an "old horse sale," and a sandwich sale.

Key Club

THE KEY CLUB, a junior organization sponsored by the local Kiwanis, has been making rapid progress in growth and activity since the club was started in 1928. All boys of good standing in the school are eligible for membership, and the group now has a roll of nearly fifty. The club's adviser is Mr. J. S. Reed, popular math. teacher and loyal Kiwanian.

The chief activity this year was the remodeling of the old bungalow, once the home of the agricultural department, into a club house to be used jointly by the Girls' Athletic Association and the Key Club. Open house was held in February in the bungalow for Key Club members, their parents, and local Kiwanians.

Officers for the fall semester were Walt Cottle, president; John Craig, secretary. Spring officers were Ed Grogan, president; Frank Woods, vice-president; Jack Brewster, secretary; Howard Jefferies, treasurer; Bob Moore, sergeant-at-arms.

Chinese Club

THE CHINESE STUDENTS CLUB was organized five years ago to bring all Chinese students in the school together in order to better their social relations. To carry out this purpose, outings, socials, and dances have been held. The club is scheduled to meet twice each month. There are three officers, and an advisory board of five members is appointed by the president to confer with him in matters concerning the club. The sponsor of the organization is Mr. Ralph Raven.

In the fall semester the following officers served; Donald Lum, president; Lloyd Chan, vice-president; and Mae Wong, secretary. Lectures and musical programs were given at each meeting. A Hallowe'en dance was also given, and proved to be very successful.

For the spring semester the officers were Ray Wong, president; Johnny Wong, vice-president; and John Wong, secretary. The first event of the new semester was the visit to the Haggin Memorial Museum at the invitation of the Wright brothers, who were exhibiting Chinese art there. Then a reception committee headed by Ray Wong welcomed Dr. T. S. Koo, a notable figure in the question of world peace, to this city. The club attended a dinner given in honor of Dr. Koo at the Hotel Lincoln. A picnic was planned for June, concluding another successful year for the Chinese Club.

Filipino Club

DURING the past year the Filipino Club has had many very interesting programs, and has been very active despite the fact that the club membership has been considerably reduced. The seventeen members constitute all of the Filipino students in Stockton High School. The purpose of the group is to promote friendship among members of their own race, to attain recognition on the campus, and to provide enjoyment through co-operative effort.

Under the supervision of Miss Catherine Humbargar, faculty adviser of the club, the islanders have made real progress, and have enjoyed good entertainment. Mr. Afafora, editor of the Filipino publication, "The Pen," and Professor Hubbard, from the College of Pacific, gave interesting talks to the members. The success of their vital program of the year, a presentation given before the Pan Pacific Club, was a real recognition of the club's fulfillment of its ideals.

Officers for the first term were Magno Cabrerias, president; Policarpio Fader, vice-president; Evaristo Tuilendarino, secretary-treasurer; and Hermogenes Morillo, sergeant-at-arms. Second term officers were Aniceto Ballestra, president; Magno Cabrerias, vice-president; David Beharen, secretary-treasurer; and George Calvero, sergeant-at-arms.

Japanese Club

OF THE FOUR YEARS that the Japanese Club has been organized, the past year has undoubtedly been the most successful, because of the able sponsorship of Miss Elizabeth Humbargar. The membership has steadily increased, now reaching a total of almost one hundred and twenty-five. To become better acquainted with members of the club and with other organizations of the school is the expressed purpose of the Japanese Club.

Programs of the spring semester were under the supervision of the following program committee: Bertha Akimoto, Clara Fujishige, Kiyoko Hayashi, Amy Kaneda and Florence Sato. One of the club programs featured a skit that was well received by the members—"Big Business." Those in the cast were Tomao Ito, who took the part of Mr. Ufford, a young attorney; Rosie Hagio, as Miss Duboise, his gum-chewing secretary; and Elmer Tsunekawa, as Henry Parker. Amy Kaneda was in charge of the play.

The most outstanding event of the year was a trip to the International House in Berkeley. About thirty members made the trip, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth and Miss Catherine Humbargar. Another activity of the club was the organization of a quartet under the direction of Florence Sato. Socials for the past year included a Hallowe'en masquerade, and graduation parties for the mid-term and the June graduates.

The officers for the year were, fall semester, Ted Mirikitani, president; Katsuto Nagi, vice-president; and Jack Matsumoto, secretary-treasurer. In the spring semester were Elmer Tsunekawa, president; Kiyoko Hayashi, vice-president; and Mildred Mirikitani, secretary-treasurer.

PHILOPHYSEAN CLUB

Philophysean Club

THE PHILOPHYSEAN CLUB is a girls' science club to which any girl interested in science may belong. This year there were thirty-two members. Officers the fall semester were Olive Pugh, president; Leonore Garretson, vice-president; Iris Harrington, secretary-treasurer. In the spring semester the vice-president was Helen De Voss, and secretary-treasurer, Helen Pando.

The speakers for meetings were Mr. Raven on "Hayfever Plants of San Joaquin County"; Mr. Snook on "Amphibians"; Mr. Sweet on "Interesting Facts About Chemistry"; and Miss Lowrey on "Botanical Gardens Which are Located Near Santa Ana." Different members of the club gave reports from scientific magazines.

At one of the meetings Mr. Corbett gave a demonstration of his invention, which resembles a telephone but has no wires to connect it. In April the girls visited the Stockton Milk Company. A play was given by the members of the club and, as an added feature, Louise Sattui played her accordion. To celebrate Thanksgiving the girls had a pumpkin pie feed. The faculty adviser of the Philophysean Club is Miss Lowrey.

Boys' Science Club

THE BOYS' SCIENCE CLUB is composed of boys who have satisfactorily passed one semester of science and have been recommended by their teacher as a member of the club. Its membership is approximately thirty-five. The aims of the club are to develop among the members a better understanding of science in general and of their own subject in particular, and to increase their knowledge of the part science is playing in the world today by visiting various manufacturing plants or places of scientific interest.

These two aims have been accomplished very successfully. At every other meeting speakers, men of prominence in the field of science, are present to tell the members about the various phases of their work. Some of the speakers who were present during the past year are Mr. Corbett, physics teacher, and Mr. Everett, chemistry teacher. Some of the manufacturing plants and other places of interest which the members visited were the Standard Oil Company in Richmond, the Chevrolet factory in Oakland, and the Bureau of Criminal Identification in Stockton.

During the past year the club was under the leadership of Bob Blewett as president. Other officers were Bob Swenson, vice-president; Bill Dozier, treasurer; and Durward Greer, secretary. Mr. Sanford Sweet, chemistry teacher, was the club's adviser.

Woodcrafters' Club

THE WOODCRAFTER'S CLUB, sponsored by Miss Evelyn Taylor, is composed of twenty boys of the vocational mill class. The chief purpose of the club is to encourage friendliness and co-operation among class members and teachers, to build school spirit and appreciation of Stockton High School, to promote an interest and efficiency in wood craft, and to make possible by an annual field trip, the study of the mill trade in the community as well as in the school.

Dues collected each month are refunded to the boys the day before their annual field trip. The trip this year was to the factory of Schwabacher-Frey of San Francisco, to observe how to run and decorate molding.

WOODCRAFTERS'
CLUB

President
Harold Limbaugh

The club has a printed booklet of its Constitution and By-Laws—an unusual accomplishment for any club.

The officers for the first semester were Glen Holt, president; Harold Limbaugh, vice-president; Sylva Reppetti, secretary-treasurer; Robert Westphal, sport and program manager; and Robert Wilkinson, Junior Red Cross representative. The second semester officers were Harold Limbaugh, president; Lynn Ebel, vice-president; Sylva Reppetti, secretary-treasurer; Robert Westphal, sport and program manager; and Robert Wilkinson, Red Cross representative.

Liberatus Club

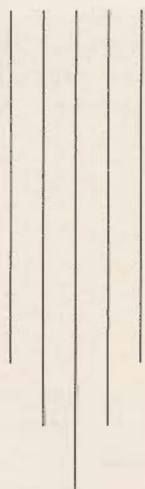

LIBERATUS is one of the smallest clubs of the school, composed of the cafeteria workers. The purpose of the club is to let the workers discuss their various problems, and also to furnish a means whereby the members may have good times.

During the year several parties were held. One of the largest was the Christmas party held in the cafeteria. After having dinner in the cafeteria, the members enjoyed dancing at a fashionable place. Just before school let out a picnic was held. Quite a number of members attended and had a very enjoyable time. The members of the club are indebted to Mrs. Danielson for her unending generosity, for at all parties she cooked and furnished the food.

The officers of the club during the past year were as follows: president, Lloyd James; secretary-treasurer, Margaret Brooks; sponsor, Mrs. Danielson.

for Open House involved Morris Silverman and Adeline Selna as judges. Mr. Wendell W. Phillips of the County Surveyor's office, who is writing a book on the Pony Express, gave a talk illustrative of the material he is collecting.

Any student who collects stamps is eligible for membership in the organization, and some very complete volumes are owned by Morris Silverman and Alden Brochier.

Officers for the first semester were Alden Brochier, president; Bill Dozier, vice-president; Bill Higdon, secretary-treasurer. For the second semester were Morris Silverman, president; Alden Brochier, vice-president; Virginia Culley, secretary-treasurer. Miss Adeline Selna is the sponsor.

Agricultural Clubs

THE FORESTRY CLUB, a new organization of the school, was formed only this year. The organization developed from the intense interest in the fundamentals of plant life in the advanced agriculture class. The boys in the club make a special study of the propagation of the most common and useful trees.

Saturday trips and the practical experience of developing an arboretum of several thousand trees of their own out at the high school farm lends much interest and a most valuable training to these boys. The president, Leroy Lambert, and the sponsor, Mr. J. Mitchell Lewis, have been of much value in helping these boys to further their interest.

THE TURKEY CLUB is in its second year. Enthusiasm seems to be the outstanding feature of this organization. Here boys learn to raise America's most magnificent bird in a commercial and scientific way. This season these boys own and are incubating and brooding five hundred birds, consisting of seven different breeds.

The club boasts of a "faculty" of a dozen highly successful turkey raisers who are taking a real interest in the boys and are giving them the benefit of their many years of practical experience. The club is honored in having Mr. J. Mitchell Lewis as its sponsor. Under the able leadership of Maenard Williams, president, the club has been very successful in its second year of existence.

SIGMA ETA PHI

Sigma Eta Phi

SIGMA ETA PHI, symbolizing Skill, Honor, and Friendship, was organized four years ago. To be a member of this organization, a boy has to be doing co-operative work in the vocational department, and must be one of the best two workers of his class. The two boys chosen work alternate weeks down town to gain experience, thus automatically becoming members. It is considered a great honor to belong to this club, therefore it is the aim of every vocational boy to achieve this honor. During the past year seven new members have been added to the organization. The boys hold their meetings every Friday night, all the year around, and have dinners every two months.

Glancing at the numerous good times that the boys have participated in, one may easily see that this club is one of the best organized groups of boys in the school. When snow was deep, the boys journeyed to Long Barn. Later they traveled to Comanchee for a picnic. In the spring they went for an outing at Jackson.

In order to promote better attendance at the meetings, Mr. Ralph Herring, the adviser, has divided the club into two groups. The group with the poorest attendance for the time designated by the adviser must treat the other group to a dinner. Officers for the past year were as follows: president, John Hunt; vice-president and secretary, John Lynn; treasurer, Jimmie Miniaci; sergeant-at-arms, Jimmie Clemens.

Automobile Club

A SHORT TIME AGO a new club was organized in Stockton High School. Since the time it was organized this club has been steadily forging ahead, until now it is one of the most active in the school. The purpose of the club was to insure better organization among the students of the machine shop classes. Their biggest project of the past year was to help the student aid fund. The boys did this by selling tickets for a midget automobile which they made themselves by putting together a cut-down Ford and a Star motor.

During the past year the club has had two picnics. The money for these was collected by fines imposed upon the members of the classes when they arrived at school late. There are now thirty-five members. John Panizza is president, while Howard Boyden acts as secretary. The sponsor of the club is Charles Libhart, auto shop teacher.

Yesterday

Third Prize Poem

Margaret Brooks, 11B

Wistfully, he gazed away
Down the hill of yesterday.
A pilgrim passed and sought direction,
But he was lost in deep reflection.

Higher rose the noonday sun,
All the things he'd left undone
Troubled him—He pondered still,
Blind to toilers up the hill.

Mellowing golden, evening light,
Rising mists delude his sight.
He thought—"As far as I can see
There's no one really needing me."

Suddenly the shadows dim
Deepen and envelop him.
"Alas," he sighed, "that night should come;
There is so much I would have done."
