

June Class History

THE most outstanding class up to the year 1935. How proud I was to be in it! Just because some students set out to be above average, others took it up, and soon we had a record breaking class. It started high school with the largest group of freshmen ever to enter and ended with the number practically unchanged. Four hundred boys and girls took part in the graduation exercises. Nineteen of those who walked across the stage of the Civic Auditorium were gold seal bearers by the middle of the senior year because of membership in the Honor Scholarship for six semesters or more. One of these, Rose Sakata, graduated in three years; three, Shizu Abe, Rose Merchasin, and Jimmy Nakamura, graduated in three and one-half years. Howard Becker, Edith Chickaraishi, Erma Gaviglio, Bill Gealey, Sylvester Ghilarducci, Hillard Katz, Esther Kim, Wilma Patterson, Gilbert Paulo, Jimmy Powell, Melva Raffo, Betty Raven, Jean Swenson, Ai Teranishi, and Alfred Zuckerman were all members of the class from the freshman year on.

Of our athletes, nothing much can be said except that among them were some of the most brilliant in many years, with Tony Calvelli heading the list in football. Bob Board, Glynn Johnson, Carlton Perego, and Roy Phillips also developed into well-rounded players before the end of the four years. Dave Kerwin contributed to the basket-ball team, while Eldon Kitterman was a first string member of the class "B" swimming squad.

In music, too, we had our leaders. Four students, Josephine Miramontes in orchestra, Hazel Earl and Mary Holmes in the Troubadours, and Bill Kirkman as an ace pianist, followed this art seriously. Betty Raven, editor of the Memory Book, belonged to the girls' string quartet and was a member of the Quill and Scroll. Bill Gealey, another of the 1935 senior group and editor of the Guard and Tackle weekly, claimed membership in this international journalism society, along with John Nelson, spring sports editor.

School officers? We had our share. Robert Peckler was student body president the last semester, Eleanor McCloud was especially outstanding in school government, and Eldred Barnes, Anna Knapp, Jimmie Powell, and Jean Swenson took active part in this branch of school life.

In February, the seniors picked students to represent them as their leaders when graduates. Carlton Perego was unanimously elected president, Marion Akers became vice-president, and Jack Colberg was secretary.

It was the first year that students had graduated from the paint shop, a new department started in 1931. Five boys began this branch of vocational work and refinished their class rooms in the boys' basement, and by the end of their high school career had enlisted 19 other pupils in the new class. It was also the year in which the seniors had their caps and gowns measured to fit.
