Blue and White for 1941, published by the Associated

Students of Stockton High School, Stockton, California

FOREWORD

This book is compiled from the happenings of the students around the campus. It was done so in the hope that it would afford you, the students, many pleasant memories of those days of fun and work which made up your years at Stockton High School. Realizing that it is impossible to get a picture of every activity, the staff has tried to bring to you those memories which seemed to stand out in your years with us.

As you realize some of these happenings, we hope it will bring only the bright reminders of these high school years which played such an important part of your life. As you pause at each section, it is the hope of the staff that you find your friends pictured in their most familiar settings and doing the things they usually did. Although graduation means saying goodbye to many friends, the pictures in this should help you to remember those who are gone but not forgotten.

We, the staff, sincerely hope that looking through this book of memories, will bring you only pleasure and delight.

— The Editor.

A great deal of the credit for the 1941 annual can be awarded to Geraldine Carmichael. "Gerry," as she is known to all the staff members, handles all of the more complex financial and editorial problems of the year-book. Throughout the entire school year "Gerry" has impressed staff members by her friendship, her interest in the annual, and her constant good nature and sense of humor.

*T*HE duties of the Controls are to maintain order in the halls, at rallies, and other school events, and to report offenders for cutting, smoking, riding a bicycle on the school grounds, and other offenses. Contrary to the belief of many students, the Student Controls are primarily formed not to punish students, but to warn them and help them obey school rules. When a student is summoned before the Student Control, he is allowed to explain his side of the question and to be fairly tried by the Student Control. The decision is then sent to the Deans for their approval.

“*T*O TREAT each and every offender fairly” may be used to describe the underlying principle of the Student Control. The arm of the Student Control is to treat first offenders with greater lenience than would be extended to repeated offenders.

The Student Controls are composed of twenty academic, commercial, and vocational students. The Boys' Student Control is headed by the Commissioner of Welfare, while the Girls' Student Control is headed by the First Vice President, both of whom are elected at large by the Student Body. The Girls' Student Control meets every Wednesday afternoon, and the Boys' Student Control meets whenever called together by the Commissioner of Welfare.
