Last Fall the St. Helena High School organized a football team for the first time. This should prove an important event in the history of the school, for football as it is now played is a game that offers many advantages both to school and team.

Formerly football was largely a test of mere strength, but it is now a game requiring intelligence first, courage second and strength third, and it develops all of these faculties in the player. To be a successful player, a man must be able to think and act quickly; he must catch the signals and act upon them instantly; and he must judge quickly and efficiently in a crisis.

Football also calls out a man's grit and courage. Frequently even though tired and bruised, he has to smile and keep on fighting so as not to lower the morale of his team-mates, and he must strive to keep up his spirits even when the situation seems hopeless. The game also demands co-operation and the sacrifice of individual wishes to the good of the whole team; and this kind of training brings self-control.

As far as physical development is concerned, it is well known that no game produces better results, demanding as it does the use of every muscle in continuous effort, and lung power.

While football continues to be played here at St. Helena High School and the students take a clean sportsman-like attitude toward it, the benefits derived from the game will be more and more evident to the community.

A Brave Girl

Margaret Winfield, called Peggy, was strolling down the shore of the river at dusk. She sat down to rest behind a large rock and, being weary, she started to doze off to sleep, but awoke with a start on hearing men's voices on the other side of the rock.

"We'll go there at quarter to eight and dynamite the rails on the bridge," said one man in a hoarse voice.

"Oh, we'll have our revenge on that railroad company when the 8:15 train jumps the tracks," the other man chuckled in glee.

Peggy sat very still with her eyes wide open with horror. She pictured the 8:15 train, the pride of the railroad company, jumping the tracks into the rushing river. She seemed to hear the screaming of drowning women and children. Then she stiffened and gasped. Her mother was coming home on that train! "Oh, what can I do, what can I do," thought Peggy in an agony of fear.

While she sat there thinking, the men got up and walked down the beach. Peggy crept around the rock so they would not see her. When they disappeared out of sight she got up and ran for home. She would tell her father! It was already seven thirty when she reached home, and her father was gone. He had gone to the town, six miles away, to wait for her mother's coming.

Peggy thought, "If I walk to the town it will be too late." On impulse she went to a drawer and got her father's pistol, very thankful that he had taught her how to shoot.

By this time it had grown very dark. Peggy ran through the darkness toward the bridge. As she neared it she stopped running and crept slowly forward, keeping in the shadows as much as she could. She hid behind one of the large posts of the bridge and watched. The two men were on the bridge and the dirty work was done for she saw the glow of the lighted fuse of the dynamite. With a trembling hand she raised her pistol and fired as the men passed her to leave the bridge. She hit one man in the leg and he fell over the bridge into the water. The other man fled and although she fired several times, he escaped. Then Peggy hurried off the bridge as the dynamite would explode at any moment. As she stepped off the bridge she heard the dull roar behind her and the bridge trembled. As if an answer to the roar of the dynamite came the whistle of the 8:15 train.

She must save the train and its passengers. She tore off a piece of her dress and ran up onto the bridge and stood by the track and waved it. On came the rushing train. Peggy was in an agony of fear. Would the engineer see her? Could they stop in time? The powerful light of the train shone on her and blinded her. She thought any moment to hear the crashing of the train over the bridge into the rushing river. She closed her eyes to shut it out; but it never came. She heard instead the grinding of the brakes and opened her eyes. The train had stopped within two feet of the blasted tracks. In another moment Peggy was clasped in her mother's arms and sobbed on her shoulder while the other passengers praised her bravery.

The Falls

30

I like to watch the water fall,
So sparkling and so cool,
Tumbling over the mossy rock,
Into the deep clear pool.

As the sun shines down upon it,
The water seems to gleam,
With tints of gold and silver,
In its sparkling stream.

And the ferns and maiden hair,
On each side as they lean,
Tint the sparkling water,
With a glint of green.

And when the sun sets
And glows with brilliant color,
Some of this rosy red,
Is reflected by the water.

But when the shadows fall,
The colors fade away,
And its glory is no more
Until the coming day.

My Two Clocks

Tick-tick, tick-tick,
Says the clock on the wall,
Tick-toek, tick-toek,
Says the clock in the hall.

One second, two seconds,
Three and four,
Five seconds, six seconds,
And a lot more.

One is so tiny,
It's called "Little Ben;"
The other is large,
It's called "Setting Hen."

They each have two hands,
One long and one short,
And once every hour
Each gives a report.

They each have a face
So round and so white,
And they have to be wound
Once every night.

They each have a bell
Which when wound up tight,
Goes off like a cannon
In the middle of the night.

One stands on its legs,
One hangs by its heels,
One gets you up mornings,
One calls you to meals.

And so these two clocks
So shining and bright
Never get tired,
But work day and night.

The End.

This year the Student Body is composed of one hundred and twenty members. Under the leadership of Ted Borla, President for both the Fall and Spring Semesters, the Student Body has done a great many commendable things. We feel that this is due to the co-operation given by all the members in the many activities which have been undertaken.

The first big activity backed by the Student Body was football. The Board of Trustees furnished the uniforms and other equipment necessary to put out a good team, with the provision that the students get behind them and put the field in proper order so that it could be used for football. Several enthusiastic football meetings were held and it was not long before the field was completed and a large number of boys were trying for positions on the team. This has been our first year in this sport, but we feel that with the help of everyone we can make a great success of football in the future.

The annual "Hi School Circus" was held on October 25, 1924. It was by far the most successful from a financial standpoint yet held, and enabled us to have sufficient funds to back the Far Darter and our various inter-scholastic sports—basketball, baseball, tennis and track.

The Student Body has a regular meeting every month and makes it a rule to have an outside speaker at each meeting, thus making our meetings interesting and instructive.

The Far Darter is now backed by the entire Student Body instead of by the Senior Class as in former years, as it is felt that the book can be made a greater success when supported by all the students.

The Cafeteria which was started last year under the supervision of the Domestic Science Department, is now under the supervision of the Student Body. The students now take a greater interest in it and co-operate to make it a success. Well balanced menus are prepared by the Cafeteria Management Class and the Cafeteria is now an important part of the school.

THE FAR DARTER

Lionel Blake, George Johnston, Mr. Gardiner, Miss Adolphson, William Allen
Ted Borla, Geraldine Ink, Dudley Duval, Constance Miller, Harry Becky, Janet Ewing

The Executive Committee, the governing part of the Student Body, has done very good work this year. It is the duty of every member of this committee to report anyone destroying school property, or guilty of disorderly conduct about school. The offenders are tried by the committee, which acts as a court.

The President appoints two permanent committees each semester, the By Law Committee and the Social Committee. Under the revised constitution the Vice President of the Student Body serves as chairman of the Social Committee, which has charge of all social functions of the Student Body.

For the first time in our school a Boys' Club has been organized. At the beginning of the first semester a constitution was drawn up and the officers who had been elected in the previous term took office.

The officers, together with the chairmen of the Social, Athletic and By-law committees, make up the Executive Board.

The purpose of the Club is to create a high school spirit and co-operation in its various projects. This has been carried out to a large degree, by the co-operating of the officers and members of the Club.

The activities and social events directed by the Club have been many, and have been much appreciated by the students.

A three-mile bicycle race, sponsored by the Club, was held in the first semester. Following was a Necktie and Flag rush between the two lower classes, in both of which the Freshmen won.

The boys' annual jinks was held following the basketball season. A fine program of games and class stunts was presented, but eats were the main event.

At an open meeting, on Washington's Birthday, the Boys' Club rendered an appropriate program to the Student Body, consisting of several talks, a violin solo, and two patriotic songs.

PRESIDENTS

CONSTANCE MILLER

Second Semester

GERALDINE INK

This has been the most successful year in the history of the A. G. S. The prime purpose has been achieved by promoting interest in athletics and by making better sports of the girls.

Parties have been a feature of the social side of the A. G. S. Ethel Allen, chairman of the Entertainment Committee, has planned many good times for the girls. A Jinx was held, at which the girls were initiated, and a return party was given to the boys.

We hope that next year will be even more successful than this one. The presidents for this year join in wishing the president-to-come success and happiness.

Shop

This year an instructor of Manual Training, Mr. Gardiner, was added to our Faculty, and under his able direction several classes were organized for the purpose of constructing a Shop at the rear of the Main Building. The building is an attractive structure of stucco. At the entrance are two well-lighted rooms to be used for Mechanical Drawing. The rest of the building will be given over to a Farm Mechanics Department which will contain several work benches and an auto repair pit.

Headlight

St. Helena Hi puts out a snappy little paper every six weeks. It is called the Headlight and it surely puts a strong light on all school activities.

The primary object of this paper has been to create interest among the students in all school events and Student Body activities. During the first semester the staff alone edited the Headlight. A new arrangement has been followed during the second semester, the classes each putting out one copy unaided by the rest of the school. The class members on the staff act as the editors.

The staff, aided by Miss Cummings, the faculty advisor, feel that the object of the Headlight has been accomplished this year. The staff is as follows: G. Ink, Editor; L. Harrison, Assistant Editor; Ted Borla, Jokes; E. Ellis and W. Allen, Art; E. Becky, Girls' Activities; L. Blake, Boys' Activities; C. Miller, Senior Notes; M. Taplin, Junior Notes; J. Boyd, Sophomore Notes; and S. Allison, Freshman Notes.

Mothers' Club

Twelve months have passed by since the first report of the Club's work appeared in this magazine and what has been accomplished in that time? Those who have kept in touch with the school and their children know, but for the benefit of those who are unable to attend or who have not done so, these few lines may prove enlightening. First, the school is no longer merely a building where your children acquire an education (whether they wish it or not) from some unknown men and women, but it is the place where they are educated by teachers whom the parents know personally and understand. You, who read this, are you one of the mothers who have shown a sufficiently active interest in your child's education to join the Club and help us in the work we have undertaken or are you sitting back and letting somebody else do it? Friends! there is nobody in the wide world can take the place of mother and your child is the one who knows that best. Some day at noon go to school and see your sons and daughters eating the lunch you prepared or which they bought at the cafeteria, seated at a table much as they would at home. Those tables were made to order for this purpose, purchased by the Mothers' Club. Then, too, should your child suddenly be taken ill, she may retire to the teachers' room which has been comfortably furnished by the Club to take care of just such cases. Quite a number of mothers are members of this Club, but we want more to know and understand the work we aim to do, and in many cases a careful planning of household tasks will make it possible for more mothers to enroll and thus increase our membership. The Club is looking forward to a fine year's work with, we hope, a 100 per cent. membership of the mothers of grammar school graduates. JANET EWING, President.

Cafeteria

Has St. Helena High a cafeteria? It surely has and we are proud of it.

The Trustees planned a little surprise for us and when we came back from vacation, we found a brand-new cafeteria.

It is built on the new style—individual kitchens. Each kitchen contains an entire kitchen equipment. Two girls may work together very conveniently in a kitchen.

The room is so bright and cheery (all done in enamel and blue) that it makes cooking a pleasure. Six girls, supervised by Miss Finch, prepare the lunch every noon for about forty pupils.

The Student Body has been managing the cafeteria for three months and is trying to make it a success.

Social and Dramatics

Society

Freshmen Reception

The opening social event of the season was the Freshmen Reception. It was held on the evening of September 3, 1924. The principal object of the evening was to make the Freshmen feel as much at home as possible. A program was given by the three upper classes, and later in the evening games were played. Following the games came dancing and then eats. When the party broke up everyone voted that he had had a wonderful time.

Girls' Initiation

On the evening of September 19, 1924, the Freshmen girls became real members of the Associated Girl Students. The initiation was held by candle light, making the auditorium very pretty. All the little Freshmen went in very frightened, but came out real Freshmen. Everyone enjoyed the dancing and light refreshments which followed.

Rally

The boys gave a rally on Friday, October 14, in honor of the girls. Everyone gathered around the big bonfire that was made out on the field behind the Hi School. Songs were sung and all joined in the yells that were led by Roberta Schaw and Harry Becky. Later they adjourned to the building where eats were served. It was one occasion when the boys certainly showed the girls a good time.

Circus

The biggest event of the season was the Circus, "See America First," given on October 25. One could see anything from Tia Juana to Chinatown. The Vaudeville Committee had a good peppy show, which brought forth much laughter. The Publicity Committee made attractive posters and the crowd which attended gave ample proof of the good work done in advertising. Candy and drinks were sold all evening, while the dancing was enjoyed.

Girls' Jinx

Time, Monday evening, November 3, 1924, at 8 o'clock.

Place, High School Auditorium.

About eight o'clock, mysterious looking people were seen creeping into the High School. All immediately assembled in the Auditorium where the evening was spent in performing stunts, playing games and dancing. During the latter part of the evening someone suggested "EATS." At the mere mention of the word all rushed to the Domestic Science Department where eats were served. Some of the uninvited guests looked on from the outside. All the guests had an enjoyable time, so they said.

Senior Party

The Seniors decided that they wanted some excitement. Someone suggested a theatre party, so at 6:30 on November 8, 1924, all the Seniors met up town and from there went to Vallejo. The Vallejo Ili was giving a play, "Tam O' Shanter," and that was the destination of the Seniors. After the party all met at Rose's in Vallejo where everyone enjoyed some Midnite refreshments. No one wanted to go home so they attended a dance in Vallejo. On the way home tamales were suggested, and as everyone was hungry again, they all readily agreed. In the wee small hours of the morning the Seniors reached home at last.

Senior Party

The Seniors thought it was time they had another party as excitement was badly needed at St. Helena High School. They decided to give a class party and each member could invite a guest. The party was a great success as all the Senior parties are.

Sophomore Party

The Sophomores sold the most tickets for the Circus. As they had been promised a banquet or party, it was decided that a party should be given in their honor. As it was to be a "kid party" everyone came dressed to represent a small child. Prizes were given for the best costumes. After the program, refreshments were served.

Freshmen Return Party

The Freshmen return party was a long time coming but it was worth waiting for. A wonderful program was given under the direction of Inez de Vean. After the program an "Indoor Track Meet" was held between classes which was very entertaining. Following the contest dancing was enjoyed for which special music was provided. You will have to hand it to the Freshmen—they certainly can give attractive parties.

Boys' Jinx

On Friday, March 6, the boys held their annual jinx. The different classes had their stunts. Later in the evening the girls appeared and disappeared shortly after. After the intruders had fled we ate.

Some eats! Raviolis, salad, pie a la mode, rolls and coffee. We hope the girls enjoyed their raviolis!

Senior Sneak Day

In the middle of March the Seniors, together with their advisor, Mr. Lyman, held their Sneak Day. They left town at eight o'clock in the morning, and rode to Mount St. Helena Inn, from where they hiked to the summit of the mountain. The eats, the view from the summit, the trip to Middletown afterwards and the different snow fights along the trail, were the features of the day's journey. It is easily imagined that it surely was a day long to be remembered by all.

April Fool Party

On the afternoon of April 1, all the Seniors failed to appear at school. Instead, without saying a word to any of the other students or to the faculty, they went to Conn Creek Falls, where, needless to say, they had a fine time, arriving back home long after school was out. The next day they were most cordially welcomed back by the faculty (?).

Senior Hay Ride

On April 22, the Seniors, after meeting together in town, left for Calistoga on a hay ride. After a very noisy ride they arrived there and then everyone went swimming. Later in the evening they started off again and went to the Senior Retreat, where around a big bonfire they ate, told stories and played games.

Senior Farewell Picnic

The Seniors were invited to a picnic and as it was suspected that it was to be a farewell to them, they all appeared. The program for the day consisted of swimming, dancing, games and eats. Oh yes, they had the customary tussle at the end.

Junior Prom

After the graduating exercises, the Juniors are planning to give a "prom" which surpasses them all, and according to rumors which are being circulated about, it seems as if it will.

DRAMATICS

The High School Circus

The St. Helena High School Circus was given on Saturday evening, October 25, 1924, at eight o'clock, and was a great success in every way. The entire building was artistically decorated.

There was so large a crowd that it was necessary to show the vaudeville twice, the auditorium being filled both times. The program was made up of a number of stunts, the first being two saxophone solos by Malcolm Paulson, accompanied on the piano by his brother, Ralph Paulson. Following these, was a play called "School Days," the main characters being Twinkletoes, the Spirit of Youth, Ellis Wilson; and the School Ma'am, Constance Miller. Besides these were the school children of today and yesterday. Myrtle McGee entertained with two dances. A radio program was given by Jerdon Walters, several of the candidates for President giving speeches. The Toy Shop, a drill by Edith and Ruth O'Connor, completed the program.

During the entire evening side shows were being carried on down stairs. They represented cities all over America—Dixieland, where clever pupils played the parts of darkies; Chinatown, where singing and dancing were the important features; St. Helena, in which many important places in and near St. Helena were exhibited; Boston, where the people partook of Boston brown bread and baked beans; Tia Juana, where soft drinks were served; and Alaska, where people enjoyed ice articles. After the program was completed, a very successful nickle dance was held in the auditorium.

Boys' Glee Club

Under the able instruction of Miss Carson, the Boys' Glee Club has been very active for a new organization. Although our Club has only eleven members at present, we hope to have a larger number next year.

“The Whole Town’s Talking”

“The Whole Town’s Talking” was presented by the Senior Class of '25 on March 27th and 28th, and also at the Veterans’ Home in Yountville April 25th. The play was pronounced one of the best that has ever been given. Mr. Lyman coached the play and great credit is due to him for its success. The characters were well chosen and played their parts remarkably well.

“The Whole Town’s Talking” was full of pep and amusing situations. The scenes of the three acts were laid in the home of Henry Simmons, a manufacturer, who was anxious to have his daughter marry his partner, Chester Binney, who had formerly been his clerk. The daughter thought otherwise, as she said she wished to marry a young man who was interesting, had had love affairs and was a man of the world. She did not consider that the quiet and bashful Binney had these qualifications. Her father was determined, however, and with the aid of an autographed photograph of Letty Lythe, a movie actress, leads his daughter to believe that Binney had had a love affair with the actress. This arouses her interest in Binney and results in that young man proposing to her and being accepted. The photograph, however, produces many complications and causes the whole town to talk, but finally everything is explained to the satisfaction of everyone.

The Fade of Evening Into Morning

Shadowy forms slowly crept,
 While in the dusk the flowers slept.
 A crooning breeze rocked to sleep
 The tiny birds who had ceased to peep.

Darkness ruled the dreary woods,
 And closed the morning-glories' hoods;
 A rippling stream murmured on,
 Silence could not quiet its happy song.

Darkness was fading into light,
 As morning took her place so bright.
 The flowers and birds lifted their heads,
 As they awakened from their dewy beds.

Poppies

Poppies scattered one and two,
In a lupine field dark with blue;
Seem like gold fishes here and there,
Swimming about in pairs of two.

Honey bees thick in that field of blue,
Buzzing and buzzing the whole day thru.
And the soft breeze, that murmurs in the tall pine trees
Rhymes with the buzzing of the honey bees.
