LODI FACTS AND HISTORY

Supplied by the Lodi Chamber of Commerce

In 1869 Daniel Crist was appointed the first postmaster of Moquelumne City, now Lodi. Sometime later the post office was in one corner of a drug store at the corner of Sacramento and Elm Streets. As the drug store changed hands, the new owner became postmaster. It was not long, however, until the increase in business demanded more room and the post office was moved to a separate building on Elm Street. Here it remained until 1914, and it was moved to North Sacramento Street.

In October, 1922, the post office was moved to a separate building on West Oak Street, with every equipment furnished by the Government for efficient service. During the last year the business of Lodi was sufficient to have the post office placed in the first class.

This steady growth of the postal department reflects the steady growth of the city. The population of the city is estimated at about 7500, and that of the immediate district at 12,000. The district is the most densely populated rural district west of Chicago.

Lodi is a city of homes, situated in the center of a very fertile district. It enjoys the benefits of a thriving agricultural section. Professions and businesses in all lines are represented. There are three national banks, the Lodi National Bank, Liberty Bank, and the Farmers and Merchants Bank. Today we boast of five elementary schools in the city and eleven in the district, and one Union High School in Lodi. Within the city are about 24 miles of paved streets. The district has about 100 miles of improved highways which aid in the movement of crops greatly. The Southern Pacific and the Central California Traction Company running through the city, and the Western Pacific running through the western side of the district, move the most of the fruit crop.

The important crop in this district is the grapes with an approximate acreage of 52,000. During the season of 1925, 9980 cars of grapes, all varieties both juice and table, were shipped from this locality. However, tree fruit is gaining in favor, 359 cars of packed fruit were shipped last year. This was divided as follows: 2 cars of apricots, 42 of pears, 142 of peaches and 173 of plums. Many cherries were also shipped.

Various means are used for the caring of the fruit crops beside shipment of fresh fruit. Many of the large ranches maintain their own dry yards. Apricots and peaches are the important drying fruits of this section. The Lodi Canning Company operate a cannery in Lodi, giving employment to about 300 people when it is running to capacity. They can spinach, cherries, apricots, peaches, tomatoes and pumpkins. The work in the cannery, and the cutting and packing of fruit gives seasonal labor to hundreds of women and girls. There are two dehydrators in this section. The National Fruit Products Company utilizes grapes in various ways.

Lodi has two ice cream plants, two ice plants and a pump factory.

The social side of life is largely carried on through the social and fraternal organizations. The music clubs, the Delphian Club, and the various departments of the Woman's Club offer a wide variety of study. All the important fraternal orders are represented. The various denominations of churches are to be found here. We have one theatre, the T. & D. Jr. The hotel accommodations are very good for a city the size of Lodi.

The Lodi District Chamber of Commerce is willing to render any assistance possible to the residents and visitors of this vicinity.
