The Manteca District

Manteca is the fourth city in size in San Joaquin County, and its location as the junction of the Golden State Highway is the reason for the extremely heavy automobile traffic it enjoys.

Thousands of automobiles pass through this city daily, and the result is that while a new city, it is known throughout the State as a very busy trading center.

Irrigation is responsible for the existence of many small cities, and Manteca is outstanding in this respect, making possible diversified crops that without abundant water would be impossible, and an abundant supply of water is assured in this district.

Vines and alfalfa are the source of the major crops, the alfalfa being locally consumed to a large extent by the local dairies, and the juice grapes being shipped to eastern markets principally.

One of the crops that greatly assisted in the upbuilding of our city was the sugar beet, resulting in the building of a million dollar factory by the Spreckels Sugar Company in the year 1917.

After a number of years of successful operation this factory was closed due to the ravages of the beet hopper, but the year 1931 has witnessed the planting of a large beet acreage throughout the district with the prospect of excellent results.

Due to the overproduction of grapes, many vineyards have been pulled out this year, alfalfa taking the place of the grapes in many instances.

The Manteca Canning Company is Manteca's principal industry, this company operating every year on spinach, tomatoes, peaches, and also canning apricots when the price is such that a profit is assured.

Manteca is justly proud of its two grammar schools and its Union High School, the Lindbergh Grammar School being the latest addition to educational advantages.

We have churches of various denominations, and all are well attended and supported, speaking well for the community.

The city operates a municipal water system at reasonable rates, an abundant supply being furnished at all times.

The municipal offices are housed in the City Hall, a building that is being paid for by the city, and within a few years will be entirely free of debt.

The telephone system is locally owned, being connected with the outside world by a system of 12 trunk lines furnished by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The Manteca District Chamber of Commerce and the Manteca Lions Club are the two major civic organizations, and these bodies cooperate with the other organizations located in our city.

Transportation is always an important feature, and Manteca enjoys efficient rail and stage transportation furnished by the Southern Pacific Lines and the Pacific Greyhound Lines, and also freight transportation by the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific.

The latest addition to Manteca's assets is an up-to-date natural gas service furnished by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, a company that also furnishes power and light to this community.
