Preface

In presenting this, my second directory of San Mateo, Burlingame and Hillsborough, I have endeavored to make it as complete and correct as possible, and no expense has been spared to accomplish this purpose.

In this edition all of the territory included in San Mateo, Burlingame and Hillsborough has been thoroughly canvassed, and the greatest care and judgment used to list accurately the names, addresses and occupations of all permanent residents within the territory.

Besides containing the names of all actual residents of San Mateo, Burlingame and Hillsborough, this volume includes the names of those who are now in the military service of the United States Government, and their names are designated by a star (*).

Having used my best efforts to make this a satisfactory work, I am submitting it for the approval of the public.

Respectfully,

BEV. W. WALL.

San Mateo, Burlingame and Hillsborough

In traveling down the San Francisco peninsula on the bay side, sheltered from the Pacific Ocean by the Santa Morena range, one first passes the San Bruno hills, traveling via the Southern Pacific, the busses of the Peninsula Rapid Transit Company or the United Railroad; and enters San Mateo County. Continuing southward the hills grow higher, the valley wider, and the native trees more abundant. Just here the earliest homeseekers of the State found charming sites for country seats. Convenience to the metropolis, combined with beauty of landscape, and a climate unequalled made this section the choice of those who were able to gratify their desire for the best.

Thus was the town of San Mateo started and later followed Burlingame, close up to the northerly side, and latest the municipality of Hillsborough, covering the hills on the westerly side of both the other towns.

A total population of some 15,000 has, with added transportation facilities, and subdivisions of lands heretofore withheld, found its way to this choicest of suburban retreats. Half an hour on the best of trains and rolling stock will take you to this spot via the Southern Pacific railroad. It takes longer at present by the busses or electric cars.

Naturally this neighborhood has the best of schools and churches, model streets and sidewalks, with many civic organizations keeping up the effort towards higher development in all civic matters.

Of the schools it may be specially noted that we have a high school which in completeness of buildings and equipment is a model for any city.

Some of the churches and lodge buildings are also of note. The Episcopal church at San Mateo with its organ and art windows cost about $100,000, and is remarkable in many ways. The Masonic and Elks' buildings of San Mateo and the Masonic building of Burlingame are also imposing structures.

The Red Cross hospital is one of the interesting institutions, having a complete and well equipped building, recently enlarged at a cost of $100,000.

San Mateo has a free library containing 7,000 volumes with two librarians. Burlingame also has a public library well supplied with books.

"The hotel with a garden"—The Peninsula—is a large and well equipped hotel with some 300 rooms, situated in grounds once owned by the late Alvinza Hayward, a mining capitalist of note. The interior of the hotel provides every comfort and is unexcelled in cuisine and other appointments.

The charms of beautiful gardens, drives in all directions, picturesque scenery, enchanting walks, and in fact all those things which go to make up all one can desire in suburban life, are here.

Organized effort is always at work striving with success in reaching out to even better things in this community.

The streets and highways in the vicinity are well paved. In fact, there are few communities where there are so many miles of paved roadways. One can drive for miles in and around these municipalities and never get off the best standard paving.

To the seeker after a home where the comforts and advantages of modern life are always to be had, this locality is truly ideal. If he also seeks a place where his investment is not only safe but sure to be financially profitable this is also the ideal place to invest his money. Its environment, if he looks at the map, will tell him this though he had never beheld its charms.

The pressing population of the great metropolis of the Pacific Coast of necessity must spread its homes over this territory. When such a demand is imperative, values must rise. It is open to newcomers at very reasonable figures.

The locality was never in so good a position to welcome the stranger and to prove its attractions as it is today.
