WAR

Jean Scovel and Frank Lodato proudly display two flags indicative of San Mateo High School's part in the war effort, the service flag and the treasury flag.

THE SCHOOL'S service flag honors former students who are now in the service, the figures in the large center star indicating the number at the time the picture was taken. Four gold stars commemorate those who are known to have been killed in action.

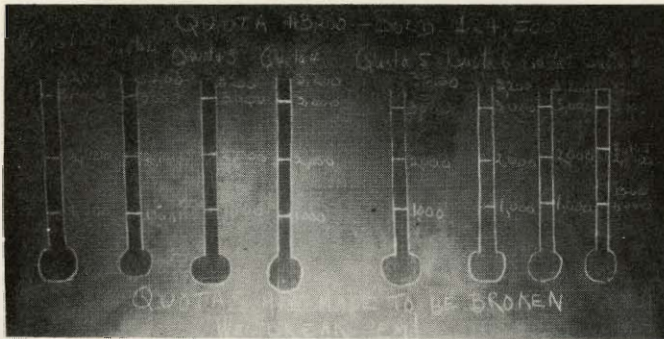

THE TREASURY flag was first earned by the school a year ago when it held its first war loan drive, which netted $17,000 in sales. Three subsequent drives have been held, the last one netting $126,987. The total for San Mateo High's four drives was approximately $300,000.

Selling Bonds

Bond Sellers Keep Busy . . . . . On Open House Night

Blackboard in room 17 attests the fact that first period Latin 2 class is the champion of all classrooms selling bonds.

Nurses and Knitters

Here learning the fundamentals of baby care are Joan Volz, Marian Johnson, Elizabeth Grimmer, Betty Nosek, Jean Volz, and Virginia Nebeker.

To LEARN the rudiments of home nursing, a group of girls meets once a week for instruction by the school nurse. After satisfactorily completing thirty hours of work, the girls are eligible for the Standard Red Cross Certificate.

Marian Johnson agrees to play the invalid so that Joan Volz can demonstrate the care of the sick.

*M*EMBERS OF the knitting club meet once a week after school to knit wool squares for afghans which the Red Cross distributes for men in the service. Several of the girls also knitted sweaters for soldiers overseas.

Vocational Workers

THE WOOD SHOP has aided the war effort by making stretchers for first aid stations, several USO houses for waiting stations, benches and tables for the local maritime school, and a food dehydrator for the cooking classes.

Boys in the wood shop gather around a USO house they have just completed for service men awaiting rides.

This group of boys in the machine shop is learning the fundamentals of handling tools and machinery. Many will put this experience to good use in war industries.

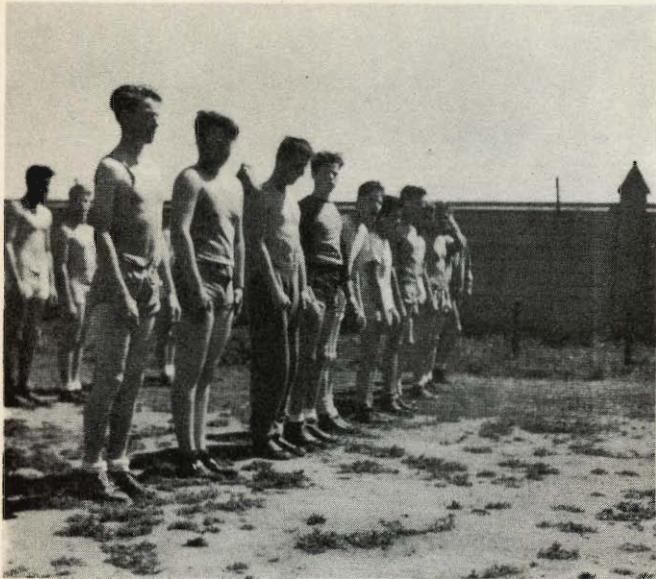

Auto shop boys learn how to take care of cars so that they may be made to last for the duration.

SCHOOL SHOPS have been running at top speed and double time in order to accommodate the great number of enrollees who desire preliminary training before entering one of the nation's vast number of defense plants

Young Commandos

Learning to stand at attention and other military commands is just a part of the senior and junior boys' concentrated physical education program that has been geared to war standards.

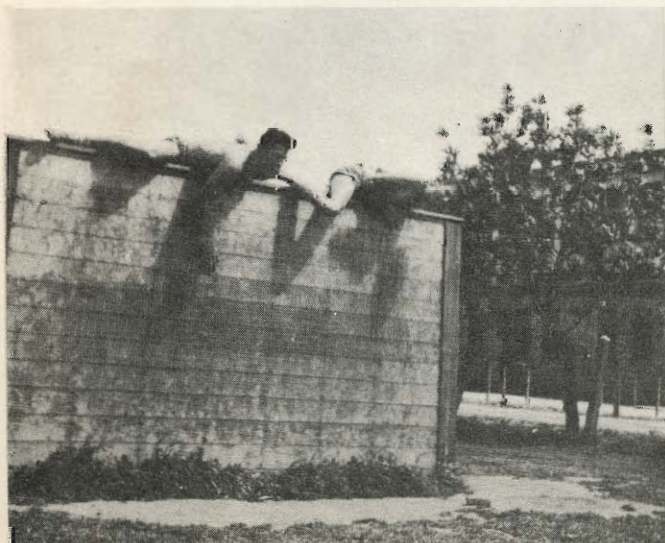

Taking the bar-vault is one of the obstacles that have to be cleared in the running of the commando course.

Intensive calisthenics is required for every boy every day throughout the commando training course.

The side-straddle-hop is used to develop coordination and to strengthen leg and shoulder muscles.

Two young commando experts go over the 7-foot wall encountered by the course runners.

One unfortunate bites the dust after clearing the obstacle wall.

In The Home

Housewives of the community, in a special A.W.V.S. class conducted by Mrs. Isabelle Sharman, learn to adapt their cooking methods to meet war time restrictions.

Karmen Gilson as commentator for the fashion Show Open House night.

Making and canning precious tomato juice to preserve its high vitamin content and to save on ration coupons.

Girls in the sewing classes model the clothes they have made in compliance with limitations imposed by war.

*A*S CONDITIONS in the home began to be affected by the war, classes in home economics were quick to respond to new methods to meet new demands.

A conga line of jumpers and pinafores shows what needle and thread and a little ingenuity can do to meet material shortages.

The Watch Tower

Rain or shine, Rodney Fergon and Wally Baitinger stand their watch.

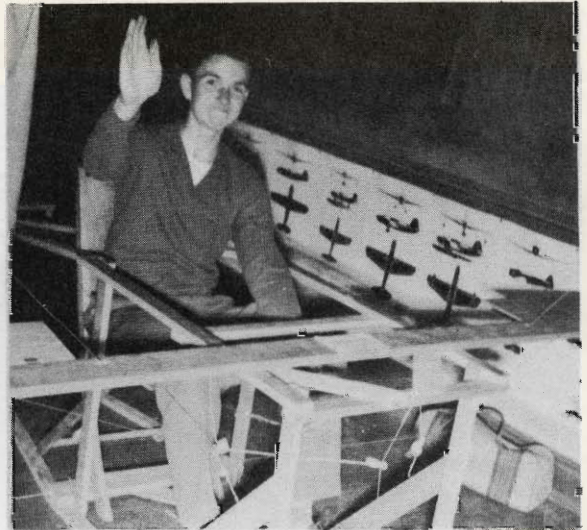

Wally spots a P-39 and gives the description to Rodney.

Rodney writes the description, direction, altitude, and time in the official log and notifies the central station in San Francisco.

Mary Jobson, George Honerlah, and Ruth Zant operate a miniature filter station to check the course of the planes in this vicinity.

Don Cochran demonstrates a Link Trainer which he built himself, designed to teach a beginner the rudiments in flight control.

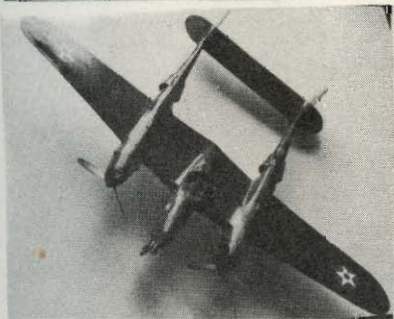

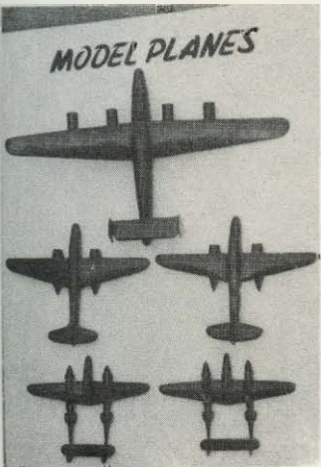

Taking the controls in hand, Don Stoner shows what he can do.

Preflight Classes

*A*T THE LEFT are samples of miniature model planes made by students in the craft classes, for use by the army and by the pre-flight group for identification study.

Adjustments for War

Students in the gardening classes respond to the food shortage by planting a victory garden. Besides supplying the school cafeteria with fresh vegetables, they gave to several local charitable institutions.

War time restrictions on transportation have prompted teachers as well as students to take to their bikes.

Council for the Victory Corps. Seated are Jane Perham, Jackie Popp, Marilyn Gleason, Karmen Gilson. Standing are Ed Bacome, Hubert Upton, Ellsworth Callen, Melvin Danz.

Students accept the frequent air raid drills as part of the regular school routine.

NEARLY 200 STUDENTS have passed the physical and mental requirements necessary for membership in one of the five divisions of the Victory Corps—land, sea, air, production, and general. The organization is a plan whereby every student has a chance to carry on war activities and at the same time prepare himself mentally and physically for future war time jobs.

THE OUTSTANDING accomplishment in an otherwise disastrous season for the San Mateo varsity football team was the defeat of their arch-rivals, Burlingame, for the first time since 1936. The 19 to 12 victory overshadowed the poor seasonal record of one win and seven losses to the extent that the San Mateo student body considered the season one of the most successful in years.

*I*N THEIR SECOND year of renewed existence, the frosh-team promised excellent material for future varsity squads as they powered their way to a tie for the league crown with Palo Alto. The Bear Kittens upheld the varsity record of defeating Burlingame by crushing the Panthers with a score of 7 to 0. Outstanding men on the team were Jim Tanner, Nick Matulich, Bob Conolley, Ed-die Mack, and Don Holm.
