End

The cheerleaders arch their bodies in the air, legs kicking back, arms thrown wide, and the rooters' shouts boost the team those last few struggling feet up the field. One tense, wild moment, then, is it victory or defeat? Now that it's over, let's look at the record.

Rated to be one of the cellar teams in the newly formed Big Seven Conference this season, the Mustangs under the fine coaching of Earl Klapstein and Don Hall came out on top as one of the best elevens in the league. The SC Mustangs placed second only to the Rams of CCSF.

In the league opener, the SC eleven fought to a 0-0 standstill against Santa Rosa. Sparked by halfback John Lucas, the 'Tang eleven pulled another draw with the Bulldogs of San Mateo. The Mustangs then blew off the scoring lid by tripping Sacramento 46-20, and Modesto 19-13. A last minute toss by quarterback Jerry Gillespie to end Bill Hoppe cinched the Mustang win in the Modesto tussle. The SC eleven was then set back in two successive tries by West Contra Costa 25-6, and CCSF 46-7, in the final two league games of the season.

In the non-league games, the 'Tangmen blasted Vallejo 25-6, with Cecil Workman tallying thrice for the SC cause. The next victim was Placer, who was downed 41-0. Stockton College fell before Fresno JC 20-19, and Compton JC 19-0.

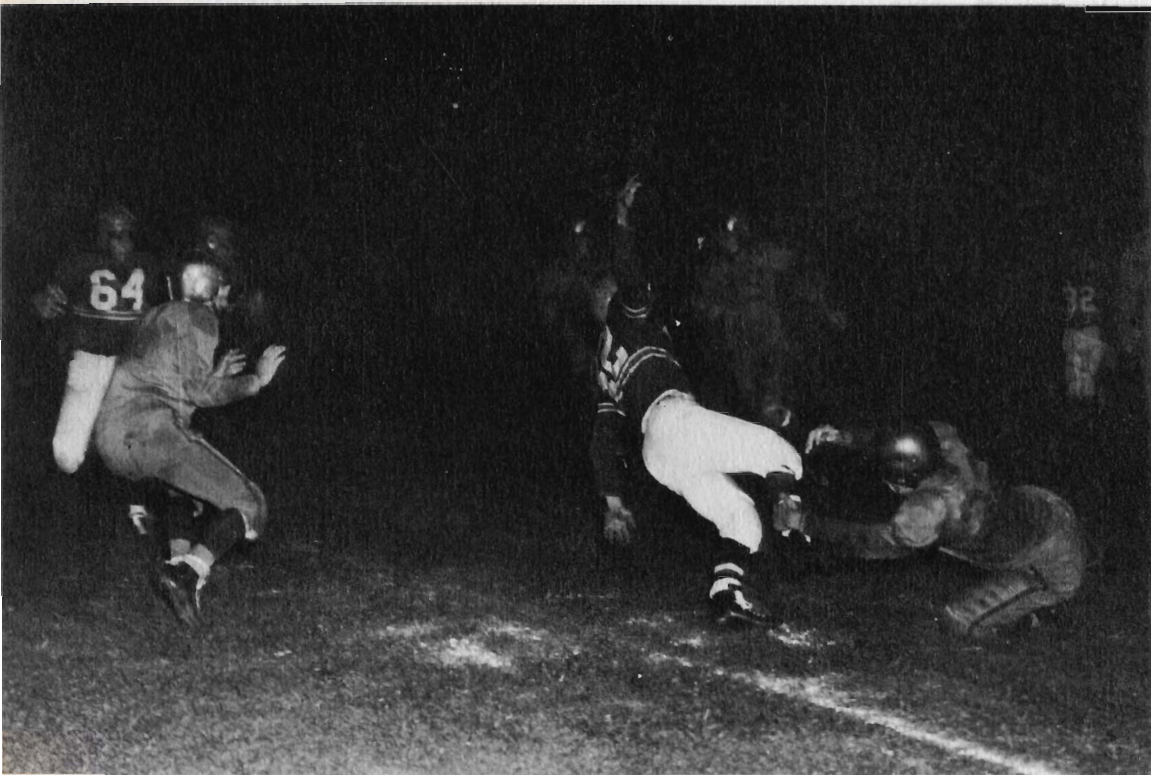

Dino Anast scoots the end with Hays' help.

Jess Bustamente and Gene Campbell stop Poly man as Rotus Harvey looks on

Fielding one of the strongest teams since the start of the 6-4-4 plan, the powerful Colts under the able supervision of coaches Frank Boyle and Carl Peregoy lost only once in twelve encounters.

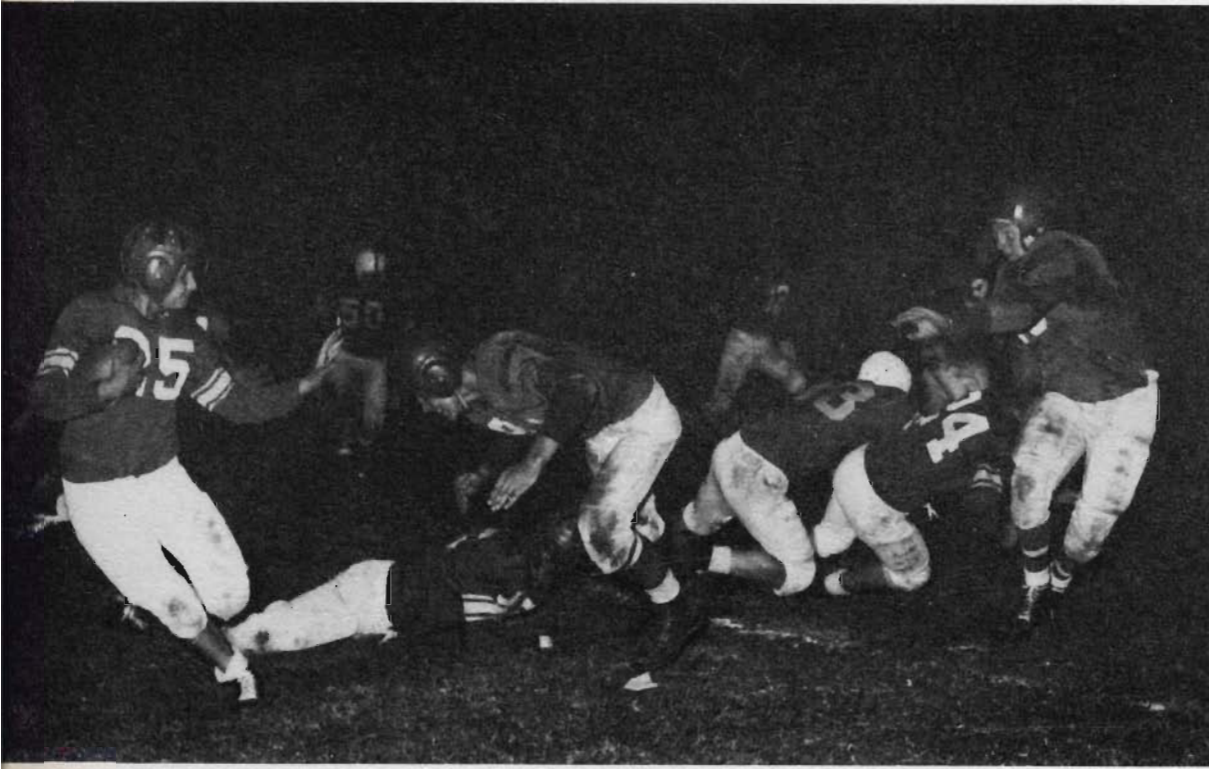

The Coltmen started their win streak at the expense of Manteca 12-6, Vallejo 27-0, and Polytechnic of San Francisco 13-0. Frazier and Campbell shone in these three games by their fast breakaway jaunts of long yardage.

Grant was the first Sac-Joaquin league victim, 46-0, and this was followed up by another SC victory over McClatchy, 26-7. The Colt line began to prove itself as one of the strongest in the conference. Turlock was taken in stride by the Colts as the SC squad grabbed their fourth straight win in a mud spattered game at Memorial Stadium. Woodland and Modesto were the next hurdles facing the Colts, but these were passed fairly easily. Woodland fell 39-0 and Modesto trailed 28-0. Halfbacks Ben Nicolas and Jess Bustamente sparked the Colt victory over the Modesto Panthers by their fine pass defense throughout the game.

Watch that ball! Darrell Haynes, Don Phillips, Ted Gabales, and Jud Smith.
